The First Billionnumbered Account

Charles Morris

The First Billionnumbered Account:

House of Commons - Committee of Public Accounts: Whole of Government Accounts 2011-12 - HC 667 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2013-12-12 The Whole of Government Accounts for 2011 12 presents the combined financial activities of some 3 000 organisations It provides vital data on which Government needs to act Key issues have been identified such as the 19 4 billion liability for clinical negligence claims But it is frustrating to see other issues seemingly ignored in long term policy making and spending decisions In one year the public sector was defrauded of over 20 billion and the tax gap rose to 35 billion The financial liabilities for dealing with nuclear waste also keep growing There is room for improvement in the document itself and how it is used Users find it hard to understand for example why the Government debt and deficit highlighted in the WGA differ from those reported in the ONS s National Accounts Also by changing definitions in its commentary published alongside the WGA the Treasury makes it difficult to track changes over time The Treasury s introduction in the commentary of a new concept of so called direct expenditure leaves out key costs such as the interest paid on the National Debt The publicly owned and controlled bodies such as Network Rail and the taxpayer owned banks are still being excluded in defiance of normal accounting rules The usefulness of the WGA is also being limited by the length of time it takes to produce the document and by poor quality data from some of the bodies The accounts have again been qualified over the completeness timeliness and accuracy of the information supplied for schools and academies
