Distorted Mirrors Donald E. Davis, Eugene P. Trani, 2009 Drawing on memoirs archives and interviews Davis and Trani trace American prejudice toward Russia and China by focusing on the views of influential writers and politicians over the course of the twentieth century showing where American images originated and how they evolved Provided by publisher

Americans Experience Russia Choi Chatterjee, Beth Holmgren, 2013 Americans Experience Russia analyzes how American scholars journalists and artists envisioned experienced and interpreted Russia the Soviet Union over the last century While many histories of diplomatic economic and intellectual connections between the United States and the Soviet Union can be found none has yet examined how Americans encounters with Russian Soviet society shaped their representations of a Russian Soviet other and its relationship with an American west The essays in this volume critically engage with postcolonial theories which posit that a self valorizing unmediated west dictated the colonial encounter repressing native voices that must be recovered Unlike western imperialists and their colonial subjects Americans and Russians long co existed in a tense parity regarding each other as other than European equals sometime cultural role models temporary allies and political antagonists In examining the fiction film journalism treatises and histories Americans produced out of their Russian experience the contributors to this volume closely analyze these texts locate them in their sociopolitical context and gauge how their producers profession politics gender class and interaction with native Russian interpreters conditioned their authored responses to Russian Soviet reality The volume also explores the blurred boundaries between national identities and representations of self other after the Soviet Union s fall
