The World Sugar Market Sergey Gudoshnikov, Linday Jolly, Donald Spence, 2004-07-01 Since the first book published by Woodhead on the global sugar business The international sugar trade was released in 1996 the world sugar market has undergone fundamental change Over the past decade the industry s key economic and policy drivers have created a new regional distribution of sugar production that has had an enormous impact on the price finding process as well as changing the type of sugar on offer to the world market Brazil has become a dominant supplier whilst Cuba s production has collapsed to the pre World War One level Russia has become the world s greatest importer and structural surpluses have seen stocks rise to historic highs and the world price fall to a level below the production costs of some of the most competitive exporters The world sugar market focuses on these changes by identifying describing and assessing the key industry drivers and their future potential impact on the market Part one provides an overview covering the history of sugar production and consumption cultivation of beet and cane and the current state of the market for sugar and alternative sweeteners Part two focuses on identifying describing and assessing the key market drivers both economic and political on sugar demand Part is devoted to a similar analysis of sugar supply whilst part four covers the future for the sugar markets The world sugar market is aimed at a wide audience from the sugar specialist looking for in depth information on a specific topic to the newcomer needing to gain an overview of the current state of play and future for the world sugar market The book is published in collaboration with the International Sugar Organization whose statistics and studies are used extensively throughout Provides a comprehensive overview of this complex and rapidly changing business Written by three of the world s leading authorities on the global sugar industry and its economics Includes data from the International sugar Organization

Sugar and Related Sweetener Markets Andrew Schmitz, 2002 Sugar is a major crop for many less developed countries but major barriers exist to its international trade Both the EU and US distort the world sugar market through various internal policies With the growth in production of other sweeteners such as high fructose corn syrup the controversy surrounding international sweetener markets has further increased This book addresses these issues and reviews world sweetener markets with particular chapters devoted to important players such as the US and EU as well as other producers such as Australia Brazil Cuba Eastern Europe and India Topics such as international trade negotiations trade liberalization US policy reform and regional integration in Latin America and the Caribbean are also addressed

Committee on Agriculture. Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing and Consumer Relations,1975 The World's Markets,1922 Examination of Sugar Marketing Conditions Since Defeat of Sugar Bill United States. Congress. House. Committee on Agriculture,1975 Implications of World Sugar Markets, Policies, and Production Costs for U.S. Sugar Frederic L. Hoff,Max Lawrence,1985 Extract Most of the major sugar producing and exporting countries including the United States have adopted national policies to protect domestic producers from the periodic price depressions U S sugar production costs are above both current world sugar prices and the prices at which the major cane sugar exporters can operate profitably Consequently the U S sugar industry cannot now compete in an open domestic sweetener market without upheaval in its production and processing sectors unless it receives Government assistance on a continuing basis How a Change in Brazil's Sugar Policies Would Affect the World Sugar Market Brent Borrell,1991 By changing its policy Brazil could increase its sugar exports greatly The world price would decline but Brazil s sugar revenues would increase Official News Letter American Farm Bureau Federation,1923 The Food Brokers' Journal ,1926 The World Sugar Market ,1992 Economics and Politics of World Sugar Policies Stephen V. Marks,Keith E. Maskus,2025-10-01 Around the world markets for producing and consuming sugar and related sweeteners are heavily distorted by trade barriers output controls price supports and government subsidies These policies have significant and identifiable impacts on the economic well being of different groups in various countries The net effect of these global distortions is to damage world welfare at the same time that the various national policies reduce economic well being in the countries that impose them Sugar policy is the perfect example of how the political imperatives of support for agricultural interests dominate considerations of national welfare or international relations The contributors provide rigorous analyses of world sugar markets and the distortions caused by policies in the major countries They employ several numerical modeling techniques to describe and assess the impacts of world sugar programs These calculations are buttressed by complementary discussions of the political and economic rationales underlying sugar protection and support The contributions to The Economics and Politics of World Sugar Policies combine survey evidence with new modeling results from econometric approaches and applied equilibrium simulations to provide new assessments of the current state of world sugar markets Several original results are presented that shed new light on the impacts of sugar protection This book should be of considerable interest to agricultural economists trade policy analysts and specialists in international relations and development economics It is highly relevant for understanding both the economics of agricultural protection and the politics of farm support The Nation ,1928 The Commodity Markets Henry Hentz and Company,1930 Azúcar ,1946 The Australasian Insurance & Banking Record ,1929 The Saturday Evening Post ,1918
