potential of clothing and textiles to illuminate issues of gender and identity is examined in this interdisciplinary foray into cultural history and material culture which draws on vernacular and commercial sources to explain these objects rather than on the official and imperial texts that have prevailed in studies of Chinese dress history As production systems and market economies created the modern phenomenon of fashion commercialized handicrafts transformed the early modern Chinese fashion system Challenging the conventional production model in which isolated Chinese women embroidered items by themselves Rachel Silberstein positions objects of fashionable dress within mid Qing networks of urban guilds operated commercial workshops and subcontracted female workers These networks gave Chinese women opportunities to participate in fashion in new connected and contemporary ways The formation of a commercialized dress and handicraft industry was thus stimulated by female oriented domestic fashionable consumption as well as by foreign markets Natural Processes in Textile Art Alice Fox, 2024-03-14 More and more textile artists are using natural processes in their work from dyeing with rust to working with found and scavenged items and this book is the first to bring these increasingly popular techniques together It promotes a way of working creatively with what is close at hand whether gathered on walks by the seashore or collected in your garden and working in tune with natural processes bringing the rhythms and unpredictability of nature into your work Examples of this type of working include rust dyeing embroidered fabric to give it a natural patina dyeing with garden fruits or seaweed weaving with pieces of beachcombed fibre and printing with found objects In all of this work nature is directly harnessed to make its mark The book is illustrated with the finest examples of contemporary embroidery and textile art work using nature by artists whose practice is tied up with their experience of and respect for the natural environment often capturing a very strong sense of place and a feeling of calmness and contemplation Magazine of Art, 1924
