World That Was:

A World that was Ronald Murray Berndt, Catherine Helen Berndt, John E. Stanton, 1993 This extraordinary book written from material gathered over half a century ago will almost certainly be the last fine grained account of traditional Aboriginal life in settled south eastern Australia It recreates the world of the Yaraldi group of the Kukabrak or Narrinyeri people of the Lower Murray and Lakes region of South Australia In 1939 Albert Karloan a Yaraldi man urged a young ethnologist Ronald Berndt to set up camp at Murray Bridge and to record the story of his people Karloan and Pinkie Mack a Yaraldi woman possessed through personal experience not merely through hearsay an all but complete knowledge of traditional life They were virtually the last custodians of that knowledge and they felt the burden of their unique situation This book represents their concerted efforts to pass on the story to future generations For Ronald and Catherine Berndt this was their first fieldwork together in an illustrious joint career of almost fifty years During long periods principally until 1943 they laboured with pencil and paper to put it all down a far cry from the recording techniques of today s oral historians Their fieldnotes were worked into a rough draft of what would become but not until recently the finished manuscript The book s range is encyclopaedic and engrossing sometimes dramatic It encompasses relations between and among individuals and clan groups land tenure kinship the subsistence economy trade ceremony councils fighting and warfare rites of passage from conception to death myths and beliefs and practices concerning healing and the supernatural Not least it is a record of the dramatic changes following European colonization A World That Was is a unique contribution to Australia s cultural history There is simply no comparable body of work nor is there ever likely to be

Understanding Loss Judith Murray, 2015-09-16 Loss and consequent grief permeates nearly every life changing event from death to health concerns to dislocation to relationship breakdown to betrayal to natural disaster to faith issues Yet while we know about particular events of loss independently we know very little about a psychology of loss that draws many adversities together This universal experience of loss as a concept in its own right sheds light on so much of the work we do in the care of others This book develops a new overarching framework to understand loss and grief taking into account both pathological and wellbeing approaches to the subject Drawing on international and cross disciplinary research Judith Murray highlights nine common themes of loss helping us to understand how it is experienced These themes are then used to develop a practice framework for structuring assessment and intervention systematically Throughout the book this generic approach is highlighted through discussing its use in different loss events such as bereavement trauma chronic illness and with children or older people Having been used in areas as diverse as child protection palliative care and refugee care the framework can be tailored to a range of needs and levels of care Caring for people experiencing loss is an integral part of the work of helping professions whether it is explicitly part of their work such as in counselling or implicit as in social work nursing teaching medicine and community work This text is an important guide for anyone working in these areas
