Student Perceptions In The Classroom:

Student Perceptions in the Classroom Dale H. Schunk, Judith L. Meece, 2012-10-12 This book's two primary objectives are to present theory and research on the role of learners' achievement-related perceptions in educational contexts and to discuss the implications of this research for educational practices. Although contributors share the view that students' perceptions exert important effects in achievement settings, they differ in diverse ways including their theoretical orientation, their choice of research methodology, the perceptions they believe are of primary importance, and the antecedents and consequences of these perceptions. They discuss the current status of their ideas and provide a forward look at research and practice.

Student Feedback on Teaching in Schools Wolfram Rollett, Hannah Bijlsma, Sebastian Röhl, 2021-08-12 This open access book provides a comprehensive and informative overview of the current state of research about student perceptions of and student feedback on teaching. After presentation of a new student feedback process model, evidence concerning the validity and reliability of student perceptions of teaching quality is discussed. This is followed by an overview of empirical research on the effects of student feedback on teachers and instruction in different contexts, as well as on factors promoting the successful implementation of feedback in schools. In summary, the findings emphasize that student perceptions of teaching quality can be a valid and reliable source of feedback for teachers. The effectiveness of student feedback on teaching is significantly related to its use in formative settings and to a positive feedback culture within schools. In addition, it is argued that the effectiveness of student feedback depends very much on the support for teachers when making use of the feedback. As this literature review impressively documents, teachers in their work and ultimately students in their learning can benefit substantially from student feedback on teaching in schools. This book reviews what we know about student feedback to teachers. It is detailed and it is a pleasure to read. To have these chapters in one place and from those most up to date with the research literature and doing the research is a gift. John Hattie Student Perceptions of Rules for Classroom Interaction H. Paul LeBlanc, 3rd, 1997-08 Burgoon's expectancy violation model posits that nonverbal rule violations will be evaluated according to the perceptions toward the violator and the behavior itself. However, the violator may have perceptions regarding the appropriateness of the rule. This study measured the perceptions of high school students regarding the rules for classroom interaction. It is believed that the rules for classroom interaction are rules which have been learned through the process of socialization and enculturation into the classroom setting throughout students' careers. These rules should be well known by all students by the time they reach tenth grade, the grade being investigated. A survey questionnaire was developed through a pilot study and was distributed to 244 students through the English classes of three East Baton Rouge parish high schools. The high schools were chosen by relative drop-out rate. Students were grouped by sex, race, and age to measure differences in attitude by characteristics of potential dropouts. The study found that males have more negative attitudes toward compliance with laziness rules and the importance of those laziness rules than females The study also found that Black students have a more positive attitudes regarding the importance of distraction laziness and respectfulness rules than non Black students Implications regarding the attitudes toward classroom rules are discussed

Bzenas,2014 The current exploratory descriptive case study was designed to gain an understanding of teacher behaviors that promote student engagement in the school setting from the perspective of both students and teachers The purpose of this mixed methods case study was to gain an understanding of what teachers do to engage students in learning and to explore how students perceive these efforts based on their own notion of engagement Based on the literature the study sought to explore the application aspects of the meta construct of student engagement Of particular interest was the teacher student relationship in creating a culture of learning to establish a sense of flow in the classroom setting Three experienced teachers were involved in the study which implicated the need for curriculum expertise as a foundation for effective student engagement in tandem with the willingness to develop respectful student teacher relationships Student
