Text, Texture and Cohesion

Text:

The word 'text' is exploited in linguistics to refer to any passage, spoken or written, of whatever length, that does construct a unified whole. According to Widdowson (1979), "a text is a collection of formal objects held together by patterns of equivalence or frequencies or by cohesive devices".

A text may be prose or verse, dialogue or monologue. It may be anything from a single proverb to a whole play, from a momentary cry for help to an all-day discussion on a committee. That is, geographical length is not important for a text, for example –

- a. A single word: "DANGER" on a warning sign.
- b. A stretch of language even though not a sentence: "NO SMOKING" printed on a wall.
- c. Plays or novels: Hamlet, Great Expectations, etc.

A text is a unit of language in use. It is not a lexico-grammatical unit like a clause or a sentence, and it is not defined by size. We cannot mathematically count that a text has two or three or... sentences. A text does not consist of sentences. It is realized by, or encoded in sentences.

A text is best regarded as a semantic unit, a unit not of form but of meaning. Thus it is related to a clause or sentences not by size but by realization, the coding of one symbolic system in another.

Texture:

The concept of texture is entirely appropriate to express the property of 'being a text'. This characteristic of a text distinguishes it from something that is not a text. The fact that a text functions as a unity with respect to its environment derives from this 'texture'. If a passage of English containing more than one sentence is perceived as a text, there will be certain linguistic features present in the passage which can be identified as contributing to its total unity and giving it texture.

For example –

if we find the following instructions in the cooking book;
Wash and core six cooking apples. Put them into a fireproof dish.

Hoffmann, 2012-04-16 Cohesive Profiling provides one of the first linguistic descriptions of blog discourse focusing on the cohesive relations which enable users to construe blogs as compatible meaningful wholes With a corpus based analysis of cohesive relations in personal blogs the study surprisingly reveals that there is only limited cohesive rapport between the textual contributions of blog authors and readers The book retraces blogs technological linguistic and generic evolution and describes how today s blog genres are structured and composed Additionally it is shown how cohesive interaction shared knowledge and technological expertise converge in blog readers trying to keep track of blog topics purposes and identities over time The book is of interest to researchers in discourse analysis corpus linguistics and pragmatics as well as to scholars working in the field of computer mediated communication Discourse Analysis of Biblical Literature Walter Ray Bodine, 1995 In committing themselves to the study of texts linguists have taken a long stride in a literary direction As discourse analysis brings the tools of linguistic analysis to bear on stretches of material larger than the sentence they come into close contact with the artistry of literature In the last third of this century scholars of the Hebrew Bible are gravitating in the same direction Perhaps even more consciously they are studying their texts as literature Cross pollination between these two groups is now in order The present volume is intended to help that happen It originates with biblical scholars and is addressed to our colleagues Its purpose is to introduce to them the developing field of linguistics known as discourse analysis In addition to students of the Hebrew Bible those who study ancient Near Eastern literatures the New Testament and early Jewish writings should find the following essays immediately relevant Students of literatures from other times and areas should also be able to benefit because of the pervasive emphasis on methodology Preface Semiotica , 1999 RELC Journal , 2000 Children and Reading Tests Clifford Hill, Eric Larsen, 2000-02-22 The increasing reliance of our educational system on standardized tests has precipitated a national debate This debate however has proceeded with little attention to the tests themselves This book makes a scholarly contribution to the debate by using the methods of discourse analysis to examine not only representative material from reading tests but also children s responses to it The book is particularly attentive to the role of culture in shaping children's understanding of what they read      Humans and Machines Stephanie Williams, 1985 This volume combines computer research with current issues in linguistics and second language teaching The fundamental connection between language education and information processing has emerged in recent years as numerous prominent linguists have turned their attention to the computer and information analysts have turned to linguistics and language education for models techniques and explanations required in language programming Thus this volume addresses the pressing theoretical and practical problems encountered in both fields      Word Choice and Narration in Academic Lectures Barbara Strodt-Lopez, 1993      Pragmatics at Work María Pilar Navarro Errasti, Rosa Lorés Sanz, Silvia Murillo Ornat, 2004 This volume is a collection of eight articles on the general topic of translation The common element running through them all is the analysis of samples of tourist literature and their translations from a pragmatic point of view The languages concerned are mainly English and Spanish but examples of German and French texts are also included The theoretical approaches are multifaceted Relevance theory systemic functional linguistics and discourse analysis are some of the theoretical standpoints taken as a background The book covers phenomena as varied as translation quality assessment audience design and perlocutionary effects dealing also with more specific features like thematic structure inference and propositional meaning discourse markers and grammatical metaphor in order to provide a wide range of analyses for the specialised reader
