The View from Space Clive Coetzee, 2024-02-05 Remote Sensing will continue to replace slower more costly data collection on the ground providing fast and repetitive coverage of extremely large areas for everyday applications With the fast paced nature of the modern world economy archaic data is rendered seemingly useless Decision makers and researchers alike need to analyse and present data in real time The use of remotely sensed data has opened many unexplored opportunities for exciting and innovative research It was Star Trek creator Gene Roddenberry s character Captain James T Kirk of the Starship Enterprise who said to boldly go where no man has gone before The View From Space A Beginner s Guide was written and designed to assist you in accomplishing just that The View From Space lays the foundation for the understanding of the basic principles of remote sensing and the various open data courses available The focus of The View From Space takes you on an interstellar journey focusing predominantly on the use of the Google Earth Engine application The public data catalogue contains nearly 600 datasets from more than 50 different data providers from across the world and the list continues to grow The View From Space contains numerous Google Earth Engine scripts or codes that will assist in accessing the data and information directly from the Google Earth Engine application You don t have to be a coding genius to access the wonderful world that is the Google Earth Engine It is all included The View From Space further engages in the open source GIS software QGIS and statistical open source R and R Studio software as a crucial element of the journey into space The View From Space delicately illustrates the wonderful world of remote sensing through the application of the Google Earth Engine and open source software to several case studies This completes your initial journey into space having boldly gone where you have not gone before I trust you will find this experience worthwhile Our exhilarating exploration of remote sensing has just begun Happy reading at maximum warp Advances in Artificial Intelligence and Applied Cognitive Computing Hamid R.
