Strategic Assessment In War:

Strategic Assessment in War Scott Sigmund Gartner, 1999-01-01 How do military organizations assess strategic policy in war In this book Scott Gartner develops a theory to explain how military and government leaders evaluate wartime performance how much they change strategies in response to this evaluation and why they are frequently at odds when discussing the success or failure of strategic performance Blending history decision theory and mathematical modeling Gartner argues that military personnel do reevaluate their strategies and that they measure the performance of a strategy through quantitative dominant indicators But different actors within a government use different indicators of success some will see the strategy as succeeding when others see it as failing because of their different dominant indicators Gartner tests his argument with three case studies the British shift to convoys in World War I following the German imposition of unrestricted submarine warfare the lack of change in British naval policy in the Battle of the Atlantic following the German introduction of Wolf Packs in World War II and the American decision to deescalate in Vietnam after the Tet Offensive He also tests his approach in a nonwar situation analyzing the Carter Administration s decision to launch the hostage rescue attempt In each case his dominant indicator model better predicts the observed behavior than either a standard organization or an action reaction approach

ASIA-PACIFIC: A STRATEGIC ASSESSMENT. David Lai, 2022 Strategic Assessment in War Scott Sigmund Gartner, 1992 World View Steven Metz, Earl H. Tilford, 1994 Every year the analysts at the Strategic Studies Institute prepare current strategic assessments for their particular areas of interest These assessments are the bedrock of the annual SSI Study Program This year s assessments seem especially crucial as the strategic situation throughout the world is far more complex and fraught with danger than many may realize The dramatically altered world of the post cold war period is not the peaceful and tranquil scene many had longed for and thought had indeed arrived From the Danube eastward along the southern boundaries of what used to be the Soviet Union ethnic conflict is rampant Russia remains very much an enigma wrapped in a riddle but as always Russian national interests are paramount in Kremlin thinking While there are those in the Middle East who earnestly seek peace there are others who are determined to support old hatreds and the policies that issued from them In the Far East North Korea has resisted U N demands to inspect its nuclear production facilities China is modernizing its military forces and Japan continues to seek new markets In this dynamic international setting a technological revolution is propelling many nations the United States being foremost among them from the industrial age into the information age The implications for military force structures and strategies are as enormous as they are uncertain Strategic Assessment, 1997 Strategic Assessment National Defense University. Institute for National Strategic Studies, 1995 Strategic Assessment 1999, 1999 Global Strategic Assessment 2009: America's Security Role in a Changing World Patrick M. Cronin, 2009 Provides an overview of eight broad trends shaping the international security environment a global analysis of the world's seven regions to consider important developments in their distinctive neighborhoods and an examination of prospective U.S. contributions military capabilities and force structure national security organization alliances and partnerships and strategies Strategic Assessment (1997) Hans Binnendijk, Patrick L. Clawson, 1997-10 This Assessment is aimed at policymakers analysts and members of the public who want a serious summary of the threats facing the U.S. in the next decade Contents major powers Russia Europe China Japan North America significant regional contingencies Persian Gulf Korean peninsula Arab Israel conflict India Pakistan proliferation troubled states Balkans Sub-Saharan Africa Middle Eastern radicalism transnational problems international terrorism international crime refugees migration and population force structure threat assessment key military missions force structure Illustrated World View Earl H. Tilford, 1997 The analysts at the Strategic Studies Institute SSI assess the strategic equation They address those issues and factors that will affect U.S. national security strategy over the next 12-18 months The strategic context in 1997 will be similar to that of 1996 In that it remains complex and uncertain This year the way the analysts assess the world of the 21st century is even more important because the Army along with the other services are engaged in the congressionally mandated Quadrennial Defense Review QDR These conceptions of the future have implications not only for Force XXI and Army XXI but also for the kind of Army that will serve the nation when Army XXI systems near obsolescence in 15-20 years Getting the strategic context about right is important because the Army After Next although highly capable will also be small by comparison to those forces of only a few years past Furthermore decisions made in 1997 as to weapons development and force structure will be evident in the Army of 2010-2015 World View: the 1994 Strategic Assessment from the Strategic Studies Institute Steven Metz, National Defense University. Institute for National Strategic Studies, 1994 Global Strategic Assessment 2009 Patrick M. Cronin, 2009 Offers a conceptual pathway for U.S. policymakers to begin recalibrating America's security role to reverse what has appeared to be a widening gap between U.S. ends and means now and in the future Provides an overview of eight broad trends shaping the international security environment a global analysis of the world's seven regions to consider important developments in their distinctive neighborhoods and an examination of prospective U.S. contributions military capabilities and force structure national security organization alliances and partnerships and strategies World View Earl H. Strategic Studies Institute, 1998 World View: The 1995 Strategic Assessment from the Strategic Studies Institute, 1995 Each January the regional analysts at the Strategic Studies

Institute SSI U S Army War College assess global trends that are likely to determine the state of the world through the next decade From these assessments study proposals are devised which focus on those issues and trends impacting on the requirements for maintaining America s Army as a strategic force during the coming years In 1995 the analysts at SSI estimate that 14 major determinants will significantly influence the Army s posture U S interests and national military strategy The debate between the services pertaining to roles admissions will continue Fiscal constraints will necessarily exacerbate the competition over roles and missions as each service tries to define its parameters in the wake of political change an uncertain and constantly evolving international situation and the ongoing Revolution in Military Affairs RMA The Army will articulate and refine its vision as a strategic force for the 21st century as it re engineers itself into Force XXI Fiscal constraints will also continue to drive national priorities Added to the budgetary restraints will be the uncertainties accompanying the changes in the political leadership in Congress where Republicans have replaced Democrats as chairs of all committees in both the House and Senate U S forces will continue to be used in Military Operations Other Than War MOOTW However ongoing emphasis on peacekeeping and peace enforcement operations in consonance with United Nations and other coalition partner swill cause the debate on the efficacy of this kind of use of U S force to intensify The Caribbean will remain troublesome as the political and economic crisis in Cuba deepens In Haiti rising expectations will not be matched with socioeconomic progress and frustrations could well foster violence as the time for withdrawal of U N peacekeeping forces nears

Strategic Assessment 1996: Instruments of U.S. Power ,1996 This volume analyzes how the utility of various instruments of U S power has changed in recent years primarily owing to the end of the Cold War For that reason we need to set forth our view of the changing international context within which the instruments are applied Our perspective on the emerging new world order was set forth in the first chapter of Strategic Assessment 1995 which we summarize here with some changes in nuance to reflect developments during 1995 and with some additional material to extend the analysis beyond the realm of geostrategy The essential characteristics of the present strategic environment are uncertainty and change The world is going through several types of dramatic changes For heuristic purposes those changes can be grouped into three broad categories geostrategic information and less clearly defined than the others character of government

1998 Strategic Assessment Engaging Power For Peace ,1998 Over the past few years the Department of Defense has been intensifying its study of the global security situation U S force posture and future defense requirements The National Defense University contributes to this dialog through Strategic Assessment an annual publication which applies the expertise of this institution through the leadership of its interdisciplinary research arm the Institute for National Strategic Studies with the assistance of specialists from elsewhere in government and academe Offering such analyses in both general and particular areas of interest to the national security community is an important aspect of the NDU mission This volume examines various approaches that the United States might adopt to shape the strategic environment of the future The current environment is characterized by instability and change The U S Government needs to apply the full range of options at its disposal to achieve national goals and ensure the peace and stability required to preserve our rights to life liberty and the pursuit of happiness But such options must be studied and conceptualized for years and in some cases decades in advance to take advantage of the opportunities presented by a changing global environment The recent Quadrennial Defense Review QDR recommended a series of defense posture changes This volume reviews these recommendations and takes the next analytical step to propose what is entailed by such changes Strategic Assessment 1998 Engaging Power for Peace should prove useful beyond the defense establishment to all readers with an interest in national security affairs
