Trained To Intrude:

Understanding Intrusion Detection through Visualization Stefan Axelsson, David Sands, 2006-06-01 This monograph is the outgrowth of Stefan Axelson's PhD Dissertation at Chalmers University in Gteborg Sweden The dissertation in turn collects a number of research efforts performed over a period of six years or so into a coherent whole It was my honor to serve as the opponent at Dr Axelsson's examination In the Swedish system it is the job of the opponent to place the candidate's work into a broader perspective demonstrating its significance and contributions to the field and then to introduce the work to the attendees at the examination This done the candidate presents the technical details of the work and the opponent critiques the work giving the candidate the opportunity to defend it This forward is adapted from the introduction that I gave at the examination and should serve to acquaint the reader not only with the work at hand but also with the field to which it applies The title of the work Understanding Intrusion Detection Through Visualization is particularly telling As is the case with any good piece of research we hope to gain an understanding of a problem not just a recipe or simple solution of immediate but limited utility For much of its formative period computer security concentrated on developing systems that in effect embodied a fortress model of protection
