Teaching Local History:

Teaching Local History W. B. Stephens,1977 Using Local History in the Classroom Fay D. Metcalf,Matthew T. Downey,1982 Homespun Robert L. Stevens,2001 Using several social studies and geography standards as a framework for planning this book offers teachers some of the best instructional activities for learning more about the lifeblood of communities The Teaching of Local History in American Schools Lenore Evelyn Rimer,1949 Bringing History Alive through Local People and Places Lynne Dixon,Alison Hales,2013-12-04 A much needed and delightful book It shows how history can be taught with the meaningful experiences of each child at its centre making connections between the child the locality and community the national and global past and concepts of time Throughout the authors empower teachers to adopt their philosophy by showing them how to plan select resources and strategies and reflect on ideas and case studies Hilary Cooper Emeritus professor of history and pedagogy The University of Cumbria UK Bringing History Alive through Local People and Places puts the local environment and community at the heart of history showing how it can be used as the context for successful history teaching across the primary age range It considers how to develop children s concepts and skills through local history how to link local national and global aspects of history and helps you develop your own historical knowledge understanding and confidence in teaching the subject Practical topics explored include Investigating children s cultural and geographical roots through fieldwork Finding and visiting local museums archives and heritage sights Choosing and using resources Using significant people events and buildings to link with national history Environmental education and sustainable development through local history Understanding the links between history and everyday life Planning and assessing history Based on the latest research and practice in the field Bringing History Alive through Local People and Places offers an exciting template of creative ideas and activities to show teachers how they can make history relevant to all children Teaching Local History New-York Historical Society. Department of Education,2000 Every Place Has a Story Kathryn Shurden,2014-05-01 Every Place Has a Story A Guide for Teaching Local History in Oklahoma is process driven differentiated curriculum for the study of language arts and social studies in high school This curriculum is not arranged chronologically or geographically but it promotes learning through the types of activities or learning processes that are detailed for the teacher and student This design promotes the horizontal integration of material into other courses or it can be taught as a separate Local History course Inquiry based activities are offered to challenge students Sometimes students will work independently sometimes collaboratively Creativity is encouraged throughout and the integration of subjects is truly seamless Students are asked to think to apply to analyze to evaluate and to create Activities are carefully planned to engage all types of learners and to reach the highest level of learning that is relevant to the activity We lead students to extraordinary resources that are just waiting to be used This curriculum will help you discover online resources and websites are virtual treasure chests waiting to be opened and used for the teaching and learning of Local History Students and teachers are challenged to engage technology without forsaking traditional books and paper resources Learning is assessed in multiple ways Twelve activity units use formative assessments and the final activity the Portfolio is a summative assessment for the course Learning is assessed with writing speaking and creative skills not memorizing test answers Students will complete tasks in narrative evaluative informative and creative writing and speaking This variety of assessment strategies builds students skills in research technology listening speaking writing language and creativity The result is that Local History is a catalyst for curiosity Students identify with the people in the historic events of their own communities and this curriculum challenges them to explore further Students of Local History want to learn more about the buildings landmarks events and people of their hometowns as they recognize the intrinsic value of their communities This is learning that builds pride in the community and individual self esteem

Teacher Education and Teacher Professional Development in the COVID-19 Turn Nur Arifah Drajadi, Kristian Adi Putra, 2022-11-29 These proceedings present a selection of papers from the ICTTE 2021 conference While face to face classroom instruction is brought back there are a lot of lessons learned from the COVID 19 pandemic that schools teacher training and education institutions and government have to take into account There is a need to reconsider what additional knowledge and skills pre service teachers and in service teachers need to be prepared for to anticipate such a similar unexpected situation in the future Additionally there is also a need to listen to in service teacher experiences during the emergency remote teaching and integrate the positive lessons that they have gained such as the use of technology into the current post pandemic face to face classroom instruction This proceeding is designed for teacher educators researchers in service teachers and pre service teachers in the field of language education math and science education and social science education who are interested in these topics
