Measurement of the Top Quark Mass in the Dilepton Final State Using the Matrix Element Method Alexander Grohsjean, 2010-10-01 The main pacemakers of scientific research are curiosity ingenuity and a pinch of persistence Equipped with these characteristics a young researcher will be successful in pushing scientific discoveries And there is still a lot to discover and to understand In the course of understanding the origin and structure of matter it is now known that all matter is made up of six types of quarks Each of these carry a different mass But neither are the particular mass values understood nor is it known why elementary particles carry mass at all One could perhaps accept some small generic mass value for every quark but nature has decided differently Two quarks are extremely light three more have a somewhat typical mass value but one quark is extremely massive It is the top quark the heaviest quark and even the heaviest elementary particle that we know carrying a mass as large as the mass of three iron nuclei Even though there exists no explanation of why different particle types carry certain masses the internal consistency of the currently best theory the standard model of particle physics yields a relation between the masses of the top quark the so called W boson and the yet unobserved Higgs particle Therefore when one assumes validity of the model it is even possible to take precise measurements of the top quark mass to predict the mass of the Higgs and potentially other yet unobserved particles
