Transforming U.S. Intelligence Jennifer E. Sims, Burton Gerber, 2005-08-24 The intelligence failures exposed by the events of 9 11 and the missing weapons of mass destruction in Iraq have made one thing perfectly clear change is needed in how the U S intelligence community operates Transforming U S Intelligence argues that transforming intelligence requires as much a look to the future as to the past and a focus more on the art and practice of intelligence rather than on its bureaucratic arrangements In fact while the recent restructuring including the creation of the Department of Homeland Security may solve some problems it has also created new ones The authors of this volume agree that transforming policies and practices will be the most effective way to tackle future challenges facing the nation s security This volume s contributors who have served in intelligence agencies the Departments of State or Defense and the staffs of congressional oversight committees bring their experience as insiders to bear in thoughtful and thought provoking essays that address what such an overhaul of the system will require In the first section contributors discuss twenty first century security challenges and how the intelligence community can successfully defend U S national interests The second section focuses on new technologies and modified policies that can increase the effectiveness of intelligence gathering and analysis Finally contributors consider management procedures that ensure the implementation of enhanced capabilities in practice Transforming U S Intelligence supports the mandate of the new director of national intelligence by offering both careful analysis of existing strengths and weaknesses in U S intelligence and specific recommendations on how to fix its problems without harming its strengths These recommendations based on intimate knowledge of the way U S intelligence actually works include suggestions for the creative mixing of technologies with new missions to bring about the transformation of U S intelligence without incurring unnecessary harm or expense The goal is the creation of an intelligence community that can rapidly respond to developments in international politics such as the emergence of nimble terrorist networks while reconciling national security requirements with the rights and liberties of American citizens An Overview of the United States Intelligence Community for the 111th Congress, 2009 The Director of National Intelligence DNI serves as the head of the Intelligence Community IC and is the principal advisor to the President the National Security Council NSC and the

Homeland Security Council HSC for intelligence matters related to national security Also the Director oversees and directs the implementation of the National Intelligence Program The President appoints the DNI and the Principal Deputy Director with the advice and consent of the Senate This report presents organizational profiles of the U S Intelligence Community The following organizations are profiled Office of the Director of National Intelligence Central Intelligence Agency Defense Intelligence Agency Department of Justice including the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Geospatial Intelligence Agency National Reconnaissance Office National Security Agency Department of Justice including the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Office of National Security Intelligence Department of Energy including the Office of Intelligence and Counterintelligence Department of Homeland Security including the Office of Intelligence Department of State including the Bureau of Intelligence and Research Department of the Treasury including the Office of Intelligence and Analysis United States Army United States Navy United States Air Force United States Marine Corps and United States Coast Guard The report concludes with a directory of Intelligence Community Legislative Affairs Offices The Cia And The U.s.

Intelligence System Scott Breckinridge,2019-06-18 Foreign policy including economic policy and national security policy and the appropriate planning decisionmaking and execution of that policy depend upon foreign intelligence which must be collected on a global scale checked compared sifted analyzed and coordinated The collection analysis and delivery of this body of information require Directors of Central Intelligence and Leaders of the U. S. Intelligence Community Douglas Garthoff,Central Agency,2012-08-01 In the wake of 11 September 2001 the issue of homeland security spawned a vibrant public discussion about the need to coordinate a wide range of federal governmental activities to achieve greater security for the United States Congress enacted laws that established a new executive department the Department of Homeland Security and a new federal intelligence chief the director of national intelligence In both cases the objective was to integrate activities of disparate organizations better in order to improve critical government functions In fact for more than half a century there have been numerous efforts to enhance cooperation among the many parts of the nation s intelligence establishment under the leadership of a principal intelligence official called the director of central intelligence The story of this study is what the nation s leaders expected of directors of central intelligence in accomplishing this task and how those who held the responsibility attempted to carry it out The hope is that lessons drawn from that experience can inform today s ongoing debate about how best the new director of national intelligence can accomplish America s national intelligence mission The study presents an unusual perspective Examinations of past intelligence performance often focus on how intelligence has played a role in specific circumstances Studies of directors of central intelligence have usually stressed how they led the Central Intelligence Agency conducted their relationships with the president or affected US policy No study until this one has focused on how each director sought to fulfill his community role This book was prepared under the auspices of the Center for the Study of Intelligence by Dr Douglas F Garthoff a former CIA analyst and senior manager It reflects the author s deep experience in Intelligence Community affairs as well as his extensive research and interviews Dr Garthoff's study represents a valuable contribution to our professional literature and a rich source of insights at a moment when the responsibilities and authorities of the Intelligence Community's senior leadership are again in the public spotlight
