Swib Watchmaking Year:

The Rise and Decline of England's Watchmaking Industry, 1550-1930 Alun C. Davies,2022-04-11 This survey of the rise and decline of English watchmaking fills a gap in the historiography of British industry Clerkenwell in London was supplied with rough movements from Prescott 200 miles away in Lancashire Smaller watchmaking hubs later emerged in Coventry Liverpool and Birmingham The English industry led European watchmaking in the late eighteenth century in output and its lucrative export markets extended to the Ottoman Empire and China It also made marine chronometers the most complex of hand crafted pre industrial mechanisms crucially important to the later hegemony of Britain s navy and merchant marine Although Britain was the workshop of the world its watchmaking industry declined Why First because cheap Swiss watches were smuggled into British markets Later in the era of Free Trade they were joined by machine made watches from factories in America enabled by the successful application to watch production of the American system in Waltham Massachusetts after 1858 The Swiss watch industry adapted itself appropriately expanded and reasserted its lead in the world s markets English watchmaking did not its trajectory foreshadowed and was later followed by other once prominent British industries Clerkenwell retained its pre industrial production methods Other modernization attempts in Britain had limited success or failed

Antique Watches and how to Establish Their Age Henry G. Abbott,2014 Watches George Daniels,Cecil Clutton,2022-05-10 A long awaited reprint of an important illustrated reference work on the general history of the watch from 1500 to 1980 When Watches was first published in 1965 it quickly gained for itself a reputation as the foremost general history of the subject and following the expanded edition in 1979 which covered recent years past 1830 this has remained unchallenged in horological history In this long awaited reprinted edition collectors and horological students can again make use of the reference illustrations and history in this work as approached by the leading horology historians and clockmakers of the twentieth century Clutton and Daniels write expertly on the vast history of watches through the changing tastes and styles of collectors and makers as well as imparting their own knowledge on various technical aspects within the watches The expansive historical section encompasses both decorative and mechanical aspects of mid sixteenth to late twentieth century watches including those by George Daniels himself detailing the rich history behind more modern designs and fascinations These later years include a variety of semi experimental escapements as well as covering the development of the precision watch and work leading to it by Ferdinand Berthoud and Pierre Le Roy discussed alongside John Arnold in England to satisfy the technical minded collector Horology and collecting have grown with the changing technologies and watches continue to be produced to an exceptional technological standard Precision watches from the 1730 1930 period are covered in detail as well as high standard Swiss and American watches of the last hundred years these highly complicated watches benefit greatly from having both colour and mono illustrations to clarify the details For a truly comprehensive understanding of escapements photographs of these have been included alongside a critical approach to this essential mechanism Since its first publication Watches has provided an essential work of reference and history behind some of the most renowned minds and creations Now reprinted for a new generation of collectors and students and featuring over 600 illustrations the technical and decorative elements of historical watches can be studied and enjoyed once more

Technology Reemergence Ryan Raffaelli,2018

In 1983 14 years after the introduction of the battery powered quartz watch mechanical watches and the Swiss watchmakers who built them were predicted to be obsolete Landes 1983 Unexpectedly however by 2008 the Swiss mechanical watchmaking industry had rematerialized to become the world s leading exporter in monetary value of watches This study reveals the process and mechanisms associated with technology reemergence i e the resurgence of substantive and sustained demand for an old legacy technology following the introduction of a new dominant design Drawing on the case of mechanical watchmaking it reveals how technology reemergence is a decidedly cognitive process unfolding in two phases a first phase marked by a redefinition of the meanings and values associated with the legacy technology and facilitated by mechanisms of value recombining temporal distancing identity marking and conceptual bridging and a second phase marked by a redefinition of market boundaries and facilitated by mechanisms of competitive set reclaiming and enthusiast consumer mobilizing For mechanical watchmakers the process culminated in competitive and consumer differentiation that ushered in innovation reinvestment and a period of substantive and sustained demand growth for mechanical watches This paper contributes to research on technology cycles cognition and incumbent responses to discontinuous change
