Teacher Student Others:

Teacher-Student Relationships: Toward Personalized Education Beth Bernstein-Yamashiro, Gil G. Noam, 2013-04-16

Explore the complexity of teacher student relationships in secondary school settings and learn how these largely unscripted relationships function for students and teachers in their learning and socioemotional development For teachers the relationships provide a foundation for pedagogical and curricular endeavors and lead to their increased investment in students growth development and academic success Students who have such relationships feel more comfortable in their learning environments interested in the material and motivated to perform well We discuss what these relationships look like from the perspectives of teacher and student Topics include Drawing appropriate boundaries School provided guidelines and guidance Formats for supporting teachers A whole school approach to working on students emotional challenges Relationships in after school programs The voices of teachers and students in this volume show how much young people want to feel known and engage with teachers and how much teachers feel rewarded and invigorated by taking the step to connect with students on this level This is the 137th volume of New Directions for Youth Development the Jossey Bass quarterly report series dedicated to bringing together everyone concerned with helping young people including scholars practitioners and people from different disciplines and professions

The Student Teacher's Handbook David C. Schwebel, Bernice L. Schwebel, Carol R. Schwebel, 2001-08 Fourth edition of a popular textbook Primary or supplementary text for teacher education methods courses and seminar courses for student teachers

Instructional-design Theories and Models: A new paradigm of instructional theory Charles M. Reigeluth, 1983 Instructional theory describes a variety of methods of instruction different ways of facilitating human learning and development and when to use and not use each of those methods It is about how to help people learn better This volume provides a concise summary of a broad sampling of new methods of instruction currently under development helps show the interrelationships among these diverse theories and highlights current issues and trends in instructional design It is a sequel to Instructional Design Theories and Models An Overview of Their Current Status which provided a snapshot in time of the status of instructional theory in the early 1980s Dramatic changes in the nature of instructional theory have occurred since then partly in response to advances in knowledge about the human brain and learning theory partly due to shifts in educational philosophies and beliefs and partly in response to advances in information technologies These changes have made new methods of instruction not only possible but also necessary in order to take advantage of new instructional capabilities offered by the new technologies These changes are so dramatic that many argue they constitute a new paradigm of instruction which requires a new paradigm of instructional theory In short there is a clear need for this Volume II of Instructional Design Theories and Models To attain the broad sampling of methods and theories it presents and to make this book more useful for practitioners as well as graduate students interested in education and training this volume contains twice as many chapters but each half as long as the ones in Volume I and the descriptions are generally less technical. Several unique features are provided by the editor to help readers understand and compare the theories in this book. Chapter 1, which discusses the characteristics of instructional theory and the nature of the new paradigm of instruction, helps the reader identify commonalities across the theories. Chapter forewords, which summarize the major elements of the instructional design theories, are useful for reviewing and comparing theories as well as for previewing a theory to decide if it is of interest and for developing a general schema that will make it easier to understand. Editor's notes provide additional help in understanding and comparing the theories and the new paradigm of instruction to which they belong. Units 2 and 4 have introductory chapters to help readers analyze and understand the theories in those units. This is an essential book for anyone interested in exploring new approaches to fostering human learning and development and thinking creatively about ways to best meet the needs of learners in all kinds of learning contexts. Readers are invited to use Dr. Charles Reigeluth's Web site to comment and to view others' comments about the instructional design theories in this book as well as other theories. Storymaking in Elementary and Middle School Classrooms Joanne M. Golden, 2000. Textbook for literacy education courses examining factors related to authors' texts and readers' roles in transforming these texts into stories and considers how the social discourse in which the text is embedded shapes the story that unfolds. Religious Diversity and Education. Nordic Perspectives Geir Skeie, 2009. In the last ten years or so, religious plurality has become higher on the agenda for religious education research in the Nordic countries. This attention to religious plurality partly reflects processes of globalisation that include both physical migration and communication of ideas and is spread across the world, making it smaller. It also reflects the preoccupation of governments with social cohesion and, as part of this, intercultural education. In the curricula of the Nordic countries, this is manifested in different ways, setting also the agenda for parts of educational research. This book addresses issues related to the increasing religious plurality in the Nordic countries. These issues are a challenge to many religious groups, including historically dominant Lutheran national churches, both nationally and locally. They have also led to a reorientation in religious education research in the last decade. A rich variety of research perspectives are presented under three headings: Theoretical and methodical perspectives, The world of the students, Teachers and textbooks. Nordic religious education research here proves to be internationally oriented in terms of theoretical perspectives, whilst also contributing to the debate through important empirical studies. Examples of issues covered in the book are: unintended learning, dialogue, gender, life interpretation, spirituality, identity, and values. In different ways, all the contributions in this book shed light on the common theme of diversity and are based on a will to include diverse perspectives, both on the actors and the material of the classroom, as well as on the life world of young people. The researchers represent different generations and different theoretical and methodological perspectives. Evaluation of Online Higher Education Ana Balula, António Moreira, 2014-05-27. The work presents a theoretical framework for the evaluation of e-Teaching that aims at positioning the online activities designed and developed by the teacher as to the Learning Interaction and Technology Dimensions The theoretical research that underlies the study was developed reflecting current thinking on the promotion of quality of teaching and of the integration of information and communication tools into the curriculum in Higher Education HE i e bearing in mind some European guidelines and policies on this subject This way an answer was sought to be given to one of the aims put forward in this study namely to contribute towards the development of a conceptual framework to support research on evaluation of e teaching in the context of HE Based on the theoretical research carried out an evaluation tool SCAI was designed which integrates the two questionnaires developed to collect the teachers and the students perceptions regarding the development of e activities Consequently an empirical study was structured and carried out allowing SCAI tool to be tested and validated in real cases From the comparison of the theoretical framework established and the analysis of the data obtained we found that the differences in teaching should be valued and seen as assets by HE institutions rather than annihilated in a globalizing perspective

The "Why" Behind Classroom Behaviors, PreK-5 Jamie Chaves,Ashley Taylor,2020-09-04 Reframing behaviors for competence confidence and successful outcomes With dysregulation and neurodevelopmental diagnoses on the rise classrooms are more diverse than ever Despite efforts to support each student s needs and sensitivities educators are often left frustrated and unsupported when strategies for managing all kinds of behaviors from anxiety to acting out prove ineffective short lived or even detrimental to the students and teachers happiness and progress Through a reflective lens this book equips teachers and support staff to help all students thrive by identifying and fostering each teacher s and child s individual differences and unique strengths Written in an accessible conversational style this book will help educators Build confidence in identifying and addressing behaviors in order to support student growth and brain development Learn about an interdisciplinary approach that combines education occupational therapy and psychology to better understand and navigate brain based regulation relationships and behaviors in the classroom Use relevant research illustrations and strategies for reflective and experiential moments Discover strategies to facilitate co regulation establish positive classroom relationships address sensory needs communicate with parents and practice self care This reflective insightful book provides workable strategies to help all students as well as those who care for them feel more competent confident and successful

The Last Mile to Quality Service Delivery in Jordan Tamer Samah Rabie,Samira Nikaein Towfighian,Cari Clark,Melani Camrnett,2017-05-30 A growing body of research suggests that the quantity and quality of structural inputs of education and healthcare services such as infrastructure classroom and medical supplies and even teacher and medical training are largely irrelevant if teachers and healthcare providers do not exert the requisite effort to translate these inputs into effective teaching and medical service To exert adequate effort providers must feel they are accountable for the quality of service they provide Yet a sense of accountability among providers does not necessarily occur naturally often requiring mechanisms to monitor and incentivize provider effort The literature on improving provider accountability has under emphasized the role of monitoring practices by school principals and chief medical officers This study begins to fill this gap by investigating the role of within facility accountability mechanisms in the education and health sectors of Jordan To do this an analysis of existing and original data from these sectors was conducted in which the association of within facility monitoring and provider effort was quantified The results indicate that within facility monitoring is underutilized in both sectors and is a consistent predictor of higher provider effort
