Sunburned Faces:

Masks and Faces Lior Levy, Massimo Leone, 2026-02-17 Focusing on masks and faces as figures and objects that carry ethical and political meanings this volume examines the scientific cultural visual and philosophical histories and traditions in which they are imbricated and which allow them to gather force and to become central to how human relationships are made Offering interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary perspectives on masks and faces the book studies the prominent role they play in shaping ideals and norms of political personhood their deployment as evidence in the creation of racist hierarchies and their role in demarcating the human and non human Through historical and theoretical analyses of different case studies from around the world the book offers a global perspective that will enable readers to reflect on the interweaving of aesthetics ethics and politics in the making of faces and masks into figures around which the visual world is organized and valorized Moving from past to future from essays that examine methods for facial classification and the production of facial casts in the service of racial science to essays that reflect on the future of the human face in light of deepfake technologies or in relation to the posthuman turn the collection historicizes modern Western conceptions of masks and faces and the conceptual ethical and political hierarchies in which they are embedded This book will be an invaluable work for researchers librarians advanced students and curious learned readers who are interested in philosophy history of science visual studies and cultural studies More broadly it will appeal to those engaged with innovative approaches to the study of the relationship between aesthetics ethics and politics as these are explored through the figures of masks and faces as well as through reflections on the meaning of the face in present day digital societies

Multiculturalism in Israel Adia Mendelson-Maoz, 2015-03-15 By analyzing its position within the struggles for recognition and reception of different national and ethnic cultural groups this book offers a bold new picture of Israeli literature Through comparative discussion of the literatures of Palestinian citizens of Israel of Mizrahim of migrants from the former Soviet Union and of Ethiopian Israelis the author demonstrates an unexpected richness and diversity in the Israeli literary scene a reality very different from the monocultural image that Zionism aspired to create Drawing on a wide body of social and literary theory Mendelson Maoz compares and contrasts the literatures of the four communities she profiles In her discussion of the literature of the Palestinian citizens of Israel she presents the question of language and translation and she provides three case studies of particular authors and their reception Her study of Mizrahi literature adopts a chronological approach starting in the 1950s and proceeding toward contemporary Mizrahi writing while discussing questions of authenticity and self determination The discussion of Israeli literature written by immigrants from the former Soviet Union focuses both on authors who write Israeli literature in Russian and of Russian immigrants writing in Hebrew The final section of the book provides a valuable new discussion of the work of Ethiopian Israeli writers a group whose contributions have seldom been previously acknowledged The picture that emerges from this groundbreaking book replaces the traditional homogeneous historical narrative of Israeli literature with a diversity of voices a multiplicity of origins and a wide range of different perspectives In doing so it will provoke researchers in a wide range of cultural fields to look at the rich traditions that underlie it in new and fresh ways
