

Symbiotic Stars

A Symbiotic Star is binary containing a red giant with emission lines.

In many cases, there is a white dwarf accreting from the giant, producing a blue continuum that ionizes the wind and other circumstellar matter.

Some Symbiotic Stars are also recurrent novae: once every several decades or so, they undergo thermonuclear runaway.

This talk concentrates on those symbiotic stars with a white dwarf companion (others, e.g., GX 1+4, have a neutron star companion)

Symbiotic Stars:

The Symbiotic Stars S. J. Kenyon, 1986-12-18 Dr Kenyon has researched and assembled here all the existing data for the known symbiotic stars in which a dwarf star accretes material from its red giant companion In this book he summarises observational material covering the eruptive and quiescent phases of these objects and emphasises the important astrophysical problems raised and resolved by results at infrared optical radio ultraviolet and X ray wavelengths Physical models for the eruptive and quiescent phases and the long term evolution of symbiotic stars are discussed with the goal of developing observational diagnostics that serve to test the basic theories The book concludes with a detailed appendix and bibliography that will aid researchers interested in the history of individual symbiotic systems and confirm this volume as an indispensable handbook at any observatory where research on stellar objects is undertaken Symbiotic Stars Probing Stellar Evolution Romano L. International Ultraviolet Explorer (IUE) Ultraviolet Spectral Atlas of Selected Astronomical Objects
Chi-Chao Wu, Qichao Wu, 1992 A quick reference for the ultraviolet spectra of many categories of astronomical objects Shows reflected sunlight from the Moon planets and asteroids and emission from comets Contains the spectra for pre main sequence stars chemically peculiar stars pulsating variables subluminescent stars and Wolf Rayet stars Presents phenomena such as the chromospheric and transition region emissions from late type stars composite spectra of stars gas streams accretion disks and gas envelopes of binary systems the behavior of gas ejecta shortly after the outburst of novae and supernovae and the H II regions planetary nebulae and supernova remnants Population II stars globular clusters and luminous stars in the Magellanic Clouds M31 and M33 are included Finally gives the ultraviolet spectra of galaxies of different Hubble types and of active galaxies

Literature 1988, Part 2 Astronomisches Rechen-Institut, 2013-06-29 From the reviews Astronomy and Astrophysics Abstracts has appeared in semi annual volumes since 1969 and it has already become one of the fundamental publications in the fields of astronomy astrophysics and neighbouring sciences It is the most important English language abstracting journal in the mentioned branches The abstracts are classified under more than a hundred subject categories thus permitting a quick survey of the whole extended material The AAA is a valuable and important publication for all students and scientists working in the fields of astronomy and related sciences As such it represents a necessary ingredient of any astronomical library all over the world

Space Science Reviews 1 Dividing the whole field plus related subjects into 108 categories each work is numbered and most are accompanied by brief abstracts Fairly comprehensive cross referencing links relevant papers to more than one category and exhaustive author and subject indices are to be found at the back making the catalogues easy to use The series appears to be so complete in its coverage and always less than a year out of date that I shall certainly have to make a little more space on those shelves for future volumes

The Observatory Magazine 2 An Investigation Into the Nature of the Symbiotic Stars Mark Haines Slovak, 1982 A sample of twelve symbiotic variables were examined using both low and high resolution ground based and satellite observations between 1977 and 1981 The majority of the stars were quiescent stellar or S type systems observations were also obtained for CH Cygni AX Persei and AG Draconis during or following their respective 1977 1978 and 1980 eruptions High resolution photoelectric Zeeman spectra of AG Pegasi and EG Andromedae failed to find confirming evidence for coherent surface magnetic fields similar data for CH Cyg following the 1977 eruption also indicated such fields are not present at outburst thus weakening the single star magnetic model Contemporaneous optical and ultraviolet spectra for AG

Peg yielded revised estimates for the orbital parameters confirming an orbital period of 830 plus or minus sign 12 days and establishing the photometric period of 759 plus or minus sign 15 days The visual photometric variations arise from orbital modulation by the giant secondary of an off axis hot spot formed by heating from the hot primary and or by the pulsation of the secondary The ultraviolet variations directly reflect the orbital modulation of the luminosity of the primary The slow decline from the 1860 outburst suggests that the hot primary is undergoing the early evolution into the central star of a planetary nebula Composite continuum energy distributions were derived for ten stars from 1200 A to 3 4 microns The role of accretion in the symbiotics remains uncertain Accretion models posit a main sequence primary in order to explain the lack of a significant soft X ray flux The models for AG Peg and AG Dra however indicate the primaries are subluminous evolved stars similar to the central objects of planetary nebulae These results suggest accretion in the symbiotics may be sporadic occurring in bursts and that at quiescence the accretion disks may dissipate
