The Sentence Processing Resource Pack Jane Marshall,1999 Interaction Between Attention and Language Systems in Humans Ramesh Kumar Mishra,2015-10-09 This original volume examines the interface between attentional and linguistic processes in humans from the perspectives of psycholinguistics and cognitive science It systematically explores how autonomy and automaticity are reflected during language processing in a variety of situations A true mechanistic explanation of how humans process language would require a complete understanding of the interface language has with important cognitive systems like attention memory as well as with vision Interdisciplinary work in this area has so far not been able to generate a substantial theoretical position on this issue This volume therefore looks at different language processing domains such as speaking listening reading as well as discourse and text processing to evaluate the role attention plays in such performances and also at how often linguistic inputs affect attentional processing In this sense it proposes that the attention language interface is bidirectional It also considers applied issues like language disorders bilingualism and illiteracy where the attention language interface seems especially relevant as a theoretical apparatus for research investigations Therefore this volume brings closer theoretical explanations from the language sciences and cognitive sciences It argues that language processing is multi modal in its very essence and many conceptual structures in language evolve out of a complex interplay among participating cognitive systems such as attention and memory supported by vision and audition
