Chinese Television in the Twenty-First Century Ruoyun Bai, Geng Song, 2014-09-15 The past two decades witnessed the rise of television entertainment in China Although television networks are still state owned and Party controlled in China the ideological landscape of television programs has become increasingly diverse and even paradoxical simultaneously subservient and defiant nationalistic and cosmopolitan moralistic and fun loving extravagant and mundane Studying Chinese television as a key node in the network of power relationships therefore provides us with a unique opportunity to understand the tension fraught and paradox permeated conditions of Chinese post socialism This book argues for a serious engagement with television entertainment rethinking It addresses the following questions How is entertainment television politically and culturally significant in the Chinese context How have political industrial and technological changes in the 2000s affected the way Chinese television relates to the state and society How can we think of media regulation and censorship without perpetuating the myth of a self serving authoritarian regime vs a subdued cultural workforce What do popular televisual texts tell us about the unsettled and reconfigured relations between commercial television and the state The book presents a number of studies of popular television programs that are sensitive to the changing production and regulatory contexts for Chinese television in the twenty first century As an interdisciplinary study of the television industry this book covers a number of important issues in China today such as censorship nationalism consumerism social justice and the central and local authorities As such it will appeal to a broad audience including students and scholars of Chinese culture and society media studies television studies and cultural studies

Sinologism Ming Dong Gu,2013 Why for centuries have the West and the world continuously produced China knowledge that deviates from Chinese realities Why since the mid nineteenth century have Chinese intellectuals oscillated between commendation and condemnation of their own culture and between fetishization and demonization of all things Western And why have some of the world s wisest thinkers expressed opinions on Chinese culture which are simply wrong In order to answer these questions this book explores the process of knowledge production about China and the Chinese civilization and in turn provides a critique of the ways in which this knowledge is formed Ming Dong Gu argues that the misperceptions and misinterpretations surrounding China and the Chinese civilisation do not simply come from misinformation biases prejudices or political interference but follow certain taken for granted principles that have evolved into a cultural unconscious Indeed Gu argues that the conflicting accounts in China West studies are the inevitable outcome of this cultural unconscious which constitutes the inner logic of a comprehensive knowledge system which he terms Sinologism This book explores Sinologism s origin development characteristics and inner logic and critiques its manifestations in the writings of Chinese Western and non Western thinkers and scholars including Montesquieu Herder Hegel Marx Weber Russell Pound Wang Guowei Guo Moruo Gu Jiegang Wen Yiduo and many others in diverse disciplines from arts and humanities to social sciences In doing so Gu demonstrates why the existing critical models are inadequate for Chinese materials and makes an attempt to construct an alternative theory to Orientalism and postcolonialism for China West studies and cross cultural studies Sinologismcrosses over the subjects of history thought literature language art archaeology religion aesthetics and cultural theory and will appeal to students and scholars of East West studies with a particular focus on China as well as those interested in cultural theory more broadly

Language and Politics John E. Joseph,2006-06-21 Language this book argues is political from top to bottom whether considered at the level of an individual speaker s choice of language or style of discourse with others where interpersonal politics are performed or at the level of political rhetoric or indeed all the way up to the formation of national languages By bringing together this set of topics and highlighting how they are interrelated the book will function well as a textbook on any applied or sociolinguistic course in which some or all of these various aspects of the politics of language are covered

China Robert André LaFleur,2003 Complete ready reference covering Chinese history economics politics culture and prevalent social problems a must have addition to any global studies collection Word ,1996 Issues in Bilingualism and Biculturalism David C. S. Li,1996 Issues in Bilingualism and Biculturalism describes the nature and extent of code mixing in Hong Kong in the 1990s It is mainly based on written data obtained from the local Chinese press collected systematically over a period of two years since late 1992 While previous studies on code mixing between Cantonese and English in Hong Kong tend to emphasize sociolinguistic motivations this book presents evidence that much of the code mixing behaviour be it in print or in speech may be traced back to linguistic motivations at work resulting from sustained contact between Cantonese modern standard Chinese and increasingly English This study further argues that largely as a correlate of biculturalism code mixing which is indicative of linguistic convergence in the mind of the average Hong Kong bilingual is simply unstoppable given that the norms prescribed for the written standard varieties of Chinese and English deviate considerably from those of the vernacular Cantonese The World Book Encyclopedia ,1994 An encyclopedia designed especially to meet the needs of elementary junior high and senior high school students
