Simplified David Parks, 2011 Health Care Reform Simplified describes the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act of 2010. It translates the law's complex language into terms that are easy to understand, explaining what the new law does when its provisions take effect and how to plan for individual family and business health coverage. This book outlines the financial impact of the law and how it affects businesses, insurers, hospitals, and doctors. Most important, this book gives consumers and employers the critical information for making informed choices about new options for private and public health insurance coverage. It also describes how the law interacts with Medicare and Medicaid. Finally, it looks at the potential roadblocks—political and judicial as well as economic—that may derail some of the provisions. But with nearly half the Act's provisions in force already, there is no time to lose in understanding how this legislation affects U.S. health care providers and consumers today. Explains health reform in easy-to-understand terms. Provides guidance on options for anyone buying health insurance, whether for family or employees. Details the impact on businesses, medical professionals, and insurers. Charts the potential impact of political opposition to the act. Explains who will pay for reform and where the cost savings lie under both best and worst scenarios.

Health Systems Recovery in the Context of COVID-19 and Protracted Conflict Zsuzsanna Jakab, Sohel Saikat, Duncan Selbie, Saqif Mustafa, Yu Zhang, Geraldine McDarby, Mila Petrova, Redda Seifeldin, 2023-07-10. The COVID-19 pandemic has caused unprecedented disruption worldwide, highlighting once again the interdependency of health and socioeconomic development and the global lack of health systems resilience. Two years into the pandemic, most countries report sustained disruptions across service delivery platforms and health areas with a profound impact on health outcomes. The impact of these disruptions is magnified within marginalized communities and in countries experiencing protracted conflict. There is an urgent need to focus on recovery through investment in the essential public health functions (EPHFs) and the foundations of health systems with a focus on primary health care and whole-of-government and society engagement. The aim of this Research Topic is to gather, transfer, and promote operationalization of key experiences from COVID-19 to inform global and country-level recovery that better promote health, guide policy direction towards building health systems resilience, and thereby ensure economic and social prosperity. Experience with COVID-19 has demonstrated that traditional approaches to health system strengthening have failed to achieve the complementary goals of Universal Health Coverage (UHC) and health security with the divide between the most vulnerable and well-off only widening. Much of what had been learned from previous experiences such as Ebola in West Africa has not been widely applied. This has left health and economic systems vulnerable to 21st-century public health challenges ranging from conflict and natural disasters to aging demographics and rising rates of non-communicable and communicable diseases and antimicrobial resistance. These challenges require intentional focus and investment as well as whole-of-government and society engagement with health to build health system resilience. Greater action is needed to prevent the devastating effects of war and conflict on the health of the most vulnerable. This Research Topic will convene the knowledge and practices of leaders in public health, health systems and humanitarian and development sectors This is to ensure lessons from COVID 19 inform the recovery agenda and promote sustainable health and socioeconomic recovery for all Lest we forget and find ourselves again unprepared and vulnerable in the face of an even greater threat

Understanding the Public Perception on Health Care Reform in the United States Hailey R. Kimball, 2012 American political thought suggests that people and Americans in particular act in an individualistic self interested manner this could explain why America is the only industrialized nation that does not have some form of universal healthcare system However contrary to normative theory empirical research suggests that Americans policy attitudes often reflect a concern for the general public rather than the individual With the recent passage of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act many polls show that Americans are largely divided with about half the population favoring the ACA and half opposing it This paper will examine public opinion to determine whether those who support the act and those who oppose it do so because of self interest or because of concern for the general public In addition because of the substantial amount of media coverage this topic has received we will examine the effect that the national television news has on a person's approval or disapproval of the ACA Health Care Reform Jonathan Gruber, 2011-12-20 A graphic explanation of the PPACA act Provided by publisher Health Care Reform Henry J.
