Documents and Their Scientific Examination Charles Ainsworth Mitchell,1922 From the PREFACE THE scientific examination of documents as a branch of forensic chemistry has been strangely neglected and hitherto there has been no work dealing fully with the subject from all points of view The present book is based upon personal experience extending over many years and includes the results of a great variety of investigations on such subjects as the composition and behavior of inks pencil pigments sealing wax and other writing materials in connection with their use upon documents Some of these results have been communicated to scientific societies and subsequently published in their journals and so have had the advantage of being discussed and criticized by experts in the respective subjects The questions of the materials upon which the writing typing or printing appears of handwriting of finger prints photography and microscopical examination are all inseparably connected with the scientific examination of documents and these I have dealt with in due proportion to the whole subject bearing in mind works already available For the purpose of presenting expert evidence in legal cases criminal charges the investigation of anonymous letters and the like such studies are of material importance and as little information on the chemical questions involved was available I had to make prolonged laboratory experiments to obtain trustworthy results and these records should prove of service to others In connection with the chemical examination of documents I am privileged to make use of numerous details of cases and observations recorded by Mr A Lucas Director of the Government Laboratory Cairo whose excellent work on Forensic Chemistry contains short sections on the subject My best thanks are also due to Mr A E Osborn of New York for valuable information kindly sent to me and for several illustrations as well as for permission to quote from his standard work Questioned Documents A Manual of Dyeing Edmund Knecht,Richard Loewenthal,Christopher Rawson,1917 The Garden ,1874 The Journal of Experimental Medicine ,1916

Ecological Systems of the Geo-biosphere Heinrich Walter,1908 Phytomass and Primary Production of the Various Vegetational Zones and of the Entire Biosphere The biosphere is that thin layer at the earth s surface in which living organisms exist and biological cycling takes place It includes the upper horizons of the soil in which plants root the atmosphere near the ground insofar as organisms penetrate this space and all the surface waters More than 99% of the earth s biomass is phytomass to which we shall limit our discussion Amounts of phytomass are distinctly related to vegeta tional zones Because accurate determination of phytomass and primary production is difficult only gross estimates have been available until recently However in 1970 Bazilevich et al published in Russian more accurate calculations based on the rapidly accumulating literature for the various thermal zones and bioclimatic regions of the earth These authors calculated mean phyto mass and mean annual primary production for the various regions as dry mass in tons per hectare On the basis of measurements of the areas covered by the individual regions excluding rivers lakes glaciers and permanent snow total phytomass and total annual primary production for the various regions were obtained see table The sum of these figures is the phytomass and annual production of the land surface of the earth In addition the table gives corresponding data for the waters of the earth The values involved are potential i e they are based on natural vegetation uninfluenced by man
