No Face Judith Roitman, 2008 Poetry With a mind opening up to anything and everything Judith Roitman records the living facts of direct personal experience as they happen She does this with the discipline of straightforward simple language although the temptation is always to hold onto something but still the refusal to change anything not even one word as when the mind has stopped noticing that it notices prematurely Even when they are framed by the memory or narrative events or words are allowed the seemingly absurd juxtapositions of different levels of interconnectedness A brilliant collection Janet Rodney Roitman's distinct and elegant line runs through a large variety of forms breaking now at close intervals now at deep breaths now at the margin now at the period The line disappears altogether into white space that is equally distinct leaving the words in array Then this unbroken space becomes a matrix for the whole The result is a poetry of ongoing spiritual awakening continual without progression a redemption from the false hope set up by grammar whereby one is not so much blessed as nonplussed Which is enough Cyrus Console Montale in English Eugenio Montale, 2004 A remarkable gathering of poets who have taken on the complexities of Montale's poetry in that always impossible task of carrying the music and meaning of verse from one language to another Editor Harry Thomas's analysis of different translations of Verso Vienna is nothing short of stunning it gives us a window onto the infinite challenges choices and intuitions that make up the task of the translator The versions of poems that span Montale's entire production rendered into English by well known and lesser known English Scottish American Australian and Italian poets turned translators provide genuine access to one of the great voices of modernism while giving us a renewed sense of the beauties of the English language An admirable volume to be savored over and over by all lovers of poetry Rebecca West Book Review Index Dana Ferguson, 2001 British and Irish Poets William Stewart, 2007-08-02 This reference book contains information on poets from England Scotland Wales and Ireland The featured poets are representative of periods from the Old English era to the Post Modern age Each entry is
