The Dark Way:

Dark Way to Paradise Jennifer Doane Upton, 2005-03 Dante's Inferno is often presented today in lurid gothic terms as if it were no more than an entertaining demonic freak show. Alternately it is taken as merely a cultural and political commentary on Dante's own place and time cast in allegorical terms. But the Inferno and the Divine Comedy as a whole are much more than that. The human passions and the Mystery of Iniquity of which they are expressions are fundamentally the same in any place and time. The Inferno presents not so much a history of sin as a catalogue of the archetypes of sin, the fundamental ways in which all of us are tempted to betray the human form. Based on the works of a number of the Greek Fathers, on the writings of several members of the Traditionalist School, notably Frithjof Schuon and René Guénon, and on the kind of wide personal experience of the violation of the human form that is available to anyone in these times with both the requisite discernment rooted in love and the courage to keep his or her eyes open, Jennifer Doane Upton has once again seen Dante's Inferno as it really is. It is the record of the struggle of the human mind, will, and emotions to discover and name by the grace of God the sins resident in the human soul. As both a traditional representation and a contemporary revisioning of the examination of conscience, individual and collective, Dark Way to Paradise is at once an exegetical masterpiece and a handbook of demonology of concrete use to any true physician of the soul. In its direct application of metaphysical principles to infernal psychology, it is unique among Dante commentaries. And in a time like ours when the Western Church appears to be dissolving before our eyes, to save again what Dante himself saved out of the great medieval Christian synthesis has never been so timely.

When a Witch's World Goes to the Dogs Enter the world of Raen, turn left at the land of dragons and you'll find yourself in the country of Aeristria. A place overflowing with magic and creatures that were once only heard of in fairy tales. In the heart of Aeristria is the capital city Tolvade. Here you will find shops and taverns, laughter and fun, runesmiths looking for their next job and sneaky pickpocketing imps. Steer clear of the galloping gang of centaurs and you will see the headquarters of the prestigious Coven. Within the Coven's lower ranks you'll find Vanessa, a third-year Hunter itching to become a Spellweaver. She and her trusted demon partner Botobolbilian must investigate an explosion at the academy and bring the culprit responsible in. Easy job, right? Wrong. Vanessa and her partner find that this investigation runs deep in black magic and sprinkled with feral demon summonings. With countless lives on the line, Vanessa struggles with self-doubt and following her heart and laws as she tries to right the wrongs of these heinous criminals and bring them to justice before they do any more harm. But with an oncoming yearly blizzard just days away, is it too late? Even with all the magic spells and power on Raen, this job might be the last that this duo ever faces.
