Papers from the Tortugas Laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, 1924 Physical and Biological Guidelines for Beach Restoration Projects Walter G. Nelson, 1985 Several studies have been undertaken to describe the sand beach fauna which have been divided into 3 zones although terminology has varied There have been reported striking similarities in the types of organisms inhabiting sandy beaches in various locations The degree of wave exposure as well as the environment of the beach and the coarseness of the sand appear to be major factors controlling the diversity of sand beach communities The biology of selected organisms includes Emerita talpoida mole crabs Domax spp coquina clams Haustoriid Amphipods Surf zone fishes Ocyzopoda quadrata ghost crab Polychaetes and Sea turtles Most of the studies reported little or no long term adverse effects of beach nourishment The effects of beach nourishment were reported similar to the effects of storm events Experimental sediment burial studies were carried out on the intertidal organisms with the results shown in Table VIII The results were dependent upon the coarseness and depth of the sediment Recommendations included A general review of data on the effects of beach nourishment on sand beach macrofauna suggests that minimal biological effects result Some mortality of organisms may occur when grain size is a poor match to existing sediments recovery of the beach system appears to be rapid Turtle nesting may be negatively affected due to sand compaction for about one year Further biological monitoring should be continued until more data is available Nourishment sand should match natural sand as closely as possible in size distribution and chemical characteristics The upper beach should be plowed following nourishment to counteract compaction in turtle nesting areas Avoid covering dune vegetation with sand Try to avoid nourishment during turtle nesting if this is not possible relocate turtle nests Biological monitoring techniques should be standardized according to specific guidelines A Naturalist in Tasmania Geoffrey Smith, 1909 Brief account of Tasmanian natives first encounter with Europeans and eventual extinction quotations from explorers writings appearance clothing disposition theory of origin and link with mainland natives comments on low state of material culture
