- Contribute towards the reduction of cases treated at the hospital
- Capacity building of non-medical personnel (teachers) in malaria management

INTRODUCTION

The Learner Treatment Kit (LTK) is a basic first-aid-kit available for school going children in primary schools during school hours. The primary purpose is to provide school-based health services and enable the learners to access testing and treatment for malaria and other minor ailments during learning services hours at school. LTK successfully brought life changing services closer to children. Utilising teachers as a resource to provide diagnosis, treatment and management of uncomplicated malaria, the LTK program reduced economic and financial burden for families and strain on the health system in Zomba and Machinge districts. Watch how the Learner Treatment Kit is used in schools through this link.

COUNTRY CONTEXT malawi

Malawi is among the top 20 countries with the highest malaria mortality rates including among Malawian children 5-14 years old. In 2022, there were 4,527,729 malaria cases and the disease contributed to 1,829 deaths. The disease contributed to 19% of all outpatient visits, 9% of all hospitalizations and 15% of deaths (all ages) in the same year. It is estimated that school children experience equivalent to 2.1 million total attacks per year and are at increased risk of malaria infection compared with younger children, as they are less likely to sleep under bed nets than any other age group, and they are also less likely to be brought for any type of malaria treatment.

Insecticide-treated bed nets (ITNs) usage among school children is lower (38%) than that for under 5 children (54%) or other IHI members. However, the country's efforts to combat malaria target under 5 children and pregnant and breastfeeding mothers, leaving behind this equally affected age group to school aged children.

English-Medium Instruction and Translanguaging BethAnne Paulsrud, Zhongfeng Tian, Jeanette Toth, 2021-01-20

This book offers a critical exploration of definitions methodologies and ideologies of English medium instruction EMI contributing to new understandings of translanguaging as theory and pedagogy across diverse contexts It brings together a number of conceptual and empirical studies on translanguaging in EMI at different educational levels in a variety of countries with different approaches to translanguaging different named languages and different policies These studies include several underrepresented contexts across the globe providing a broad view of how translanguaging in EMI is understood in these educational settings Furthermore this book addresses the complexities of translanguaging through a discussion of the affordances and constraints associated with the use of multiple linguistic resources in the EMI classroom

Some Developments in Research in Science and Mathematics in Sub-Saharan Africa Lorna Holtman, 2008 Much attention in late developing countries is given to providing access to studies which allow school leavers to enter science and technology related careers These programmes are driven by the belief that graduates will then substantially contribute to the developmental needs of their countries But is providing access to institutions enough Students in developing countries often come from school environments lacking in resources human physical and financial This book in a number of chapters reviews research related to the crucial dimension of epistemological access to the disciplines of import which students need as much as institutional access in order to improve their chances of success A significant feature of this collection s research studies is that their empirical bases are highly localised covering areas such as research methods access curriculum instruction and assessment and the relevance of science and mathematics education in Zimbabwe Uganda Swaziland South Africa Namibia Malawi Ghana and Lesotho This volume provides invaluable insights and will be of relevance to researchers policy makers and lecturers interested in these research outcomes in Sub Saharan Africa It is the outcome of a doctoral research capacity development project the Graduate Studies in Science Mathematics and Technology Education GRASSMATE School Science Practical Work in Africa Umesh Ramnarain, 2020-06-01 School Science Practical Work in Africa presents the scope of research and practice of science practical work in African schools It brings together prominent science educators and researchers from Africa to share their experience and findings on pedagogical innovations and research informed practices on school science practical work The book highlights trends and patterns in the enactment and role of practical work across African countries Practical work is regarded as intrinsic to science teaching and learning and the form of practical work that is strongly advocated is inquiry based learning which signals a definite paradigm shift from the traditional teacher dominated to a learner centered approach The book provides empirical research on approaches to practical work contextual factors in the enactment of practical work and professional development in teaching practical work This book will be of great interest to academics researchers and post graduate students in the fields of science education and educational policy Science

Education in Focus Mary V. Thomase,2008 This is hardly another field in education which is more important for a country's future than science education Yet more and more students elect to concentrate on other fields to the exclusion of science for a variety of reasons 1 The perception of degree of difficulty 2 The actual degree of difficulty 3 The lack of perceived prestige and earnings associated with the field 4 The dearth of good and easy to use texts 5 The lack of society in comprehending the significance of science and creating attractive incentives for those who enter the field This new book focuses on issues of primary significance in the field
