Chin, Tao Lu, Xiaofei Qin, Yongren Feng, Yanmin Zhou, 2021-06-29 Mysterious supercharge effects encountered in formation testing pressure transient analysis and reservoir invasion mudcake growth dynamic filtration stuck pipe remediation and so on are often discussed in contrasting petrophysical versus drilling contexts However these effects are physically coupled and intricately related The authors focus on a comprehensive formulation provide solutions for different specialized limits and develop applications that illustrate how the central ideas can be used in seemingly unrelated disciplines This approach contributes to a firm understanding of logging and drilling principles Fortran source code furnished where applicable is listed together with recently developed software applications and conveniently summarized throughout the book In addition common incorrect methods used in the industry are re analyzed and replaced with more accurate models which are then used to address challenging field objectives Sophisticated mathematics is explained in down to earth terms but empirical validations in this case through Catscan experiments are used to keep predictions honest Similarly early time low mobility permeability prediction models used in formation testing several invented by one of the authors are extended to handle supercharge effects in overbalanced drilling and near well pressure deficits encountered in underbalanced drilling These methods are also motivated by reality For instance overpressures of 2 000 psi and underpressures near 500 psi are routinely reported in field work thus imparting a special significance to the methods reported in the book This new volume discusses old problems and modern challenges formulates and develops advanced models applicable to both drilling and petrophysical objectives The presentation focuses on central unifying physical models which are carefully formulated and mathematically solved The wealth of applications examples and supporting software discussed provides readers with a unified focus behind daily work activities emphasizing common features and themes rather than unrelated methods and work flows This comprehensive book is must reading for every petroleum engineer

Chin, 2019-03-12

This new volume, the third in Wiley-Scrivener's series on formation testing, reviews pressure transient interpretation and contamination analysis methods, providing numerous practical discussions and examples with rigorous formulations solved through exact closed-form analytical solutions This new volume in the Formation Testing series further develops new methods and processes that are being developed in the oil and gas industry In the 1990s through 2000s the author co-developed Halliburton's commercially successful GeoTap™ real-time LWD-MWD method for formation testing and also a parallel method used by China Oilfield Services which enabled the use of data taken at early times in low-mobility and large flowline volume environments to support the important estimation of mobility, compressibility, and pore pressure, which are necessary for flow economics and fluid contact boundaries analyses This work was later extended through two Department of Energy Small Business Innovation Research awards While extremely significant, the effect of high pressures in the borehole could not be fully accounted for The formation tester measures a combination of reservoir and mud pressure and cannot ascertain how much is attributed to unimportant borehole effects The usual approach is simply wait until the effects dissipate, which may require hours, which imply high drilling and logging costs plus increased risks in safety and tool loss The author has now modeled this supercharge effect and developed a powerful mathematical algorithm that fully accounts for mud interactions In short, accurate predictions for mobility, compressibility, and pore pressure can now be undertaken immediately after an interval is drilled without waiting This groundbreaking new work is a must-have for any petroleum reservoir or mud engineer working in the industry solving day-to-day problems that he or she encounters in the field Railway Mechanical and Electrical Engineer, 1924 The Field Artillery Journal, 1919 ASTM Manual of Engine Test Methods for Rating
