When Dead Tongues Speak John Gruber-Miller, 2006-11-02 When Dead Tongues Speak introduces classicists to the research that linguists psychologists and language teachers have conducted over the past thirty years and passes along their most important insights The essays cover a broad range of topics including cognitive styles peer teaching and collaboration learning disabilities feminist pedagogy speaking and writing Each contributor addresses a different problem in the learning process based on his or her own teaching experience and each chapter combines a theoretical overview with practical examples of classroom activities The book was developed for classroom use in Greek and Latin methodology classes in M A and M A T programs It will also appeal to Latin and Greek language instructors who want to get current with the latest scholarship and pedagogical models

On Second Language Writing Tony J. Silva, Paul Kei Matsuda, 2001 On Second Language Writing brings together internationally recognized scholars in a collection of original articles that collectively delineate and explore central issues with regard to theory research instruction assessment politics articulation with other disciplines and standards In recent years there has been a dramatic growth of interest in second language writing and writing instruction in many parts of the world Although an increasing number of researchers and teachers in both second language studies and composition studies have come to identify themselves as specialists in second language writing research and teaching practices have been dispersed into several different disciplinary and institutional contexts because of the interdisciplinary nature of the field This volume is the first to bring together prominent second language writing specialists to systematically address basic issues in the field and to consider the state of the art at the end of the century and the millennium

Interpersonal Dynamics in Second Language Education Madeline E. Ehrman, Zoltan Dornyei, 1998-08-04 Until now relatively little research on interpersonal processes and group dynamics addressed the educational domain particularly second language education This book fills the gap by synthesizing diverse aspects of interpersonal and group psychology and exploring conscious and unconscious processes that affect learning and teaching Drawing on humanistic social and clinical psychology it addresses unconscious communication among people group development class climate psychological characteristics of effective classroom groups leadership roles interpersonal attraction and conflicts and the relationship of these to learner autonomy and collaborative learning The authors examine the contributions of the mental health branches of counseling and clinical psychology to our understanding of how teachers learners and a variety of figures who many never enter the classroom interact with each other to make second language learning more or less effective In particular the authors show how the unconscious scripts can cause unproductive conflict demotivation and eventual aversion to language learning Moreover the text shows how learning can be facilitated by appropriate use of interpersonal dynamics Due to its interdisciplinary nature this book will be of interest to teacher educators and practicing teachers researchers undergraduate and graduate students school administrators and supervisors of educational programs and many learners themselves In addition since the main focus of the book is the affective foundation of the teaching learning process this material will be relevant to non language teachers and clinical practitioners interested in educational issues as well as graduate students in training for those professions
