Victims In The Criminal Justice System:

Victims in the Criminal Justice System Joanna Shapland, Jon Willmore, Peter Duff, 1985 Victims in the Criminal Justice System Jo-Anne M. Wemmers, 1996 Criminal Victims and the Criminal Justice System, 1986 Third Parties Leslie Sebba, 1996 Recent years have seen a heightened awareness of the plight of victims of crime and of their neglect by the traditional criminal justice system with its bureaucratic and institutional processes This concern for the victim has been shared by diverse groups including humanists conservative law and order politicians feminists and grassroots community advocates This combination of forces has stimulated a mass of legislative reform at both the federal and state levels Many jurisdictions have adopted a Bill of Rights for the victim public funds have been established to compensate victims courts have been enjoined to order offenders to make restitution welfare agencies have developed programs to provide victims with assistance and courts are inviting victims to testify at the sentencing hearings of their offenders These reforms and proposals have been accompanied by a growing body of literature that discusses the needs of victims and analyzes the merits and drawbacks of particular reforms some of which have been evaluated empirically What has been lacking until now is an integrated overview that looks at their philosophical underpinnings and considers how these different and sometimes conflicting proposals are conceptually related to one another and to other prevailing criminal justice doctrines and ideologies Leslie Sebba fills this gap in Third Parties BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved Victims and the criminal justice system United States. The Criminal Justice System and Women Barbara R. Price, 2004 The book looks at the underlying social economic racial and cultural conditions of society and how they impact on women throughout society and the criminal justice system Publisher's description Victims of the System Robert Elias, 2017-07-28 This important new book on criminology is a major attempt to evaluate actual victim compensation programs as well as their political and economic contexts through the eyes of the victims themselves Elias traces the experiences of violent crime victims throughout the entire criminal justice process comparing New York's and New Jersey's victim compensation programs He shows how programs differ when compensation is viewed essentially as welfare and when it is viewed as a right The study uses extensive interviews with officials and with violent crime victims The study indicates victim compensation programs largely fail to achieve their stated goals of improving attitudes toward the criminal justice system and the government The programs produce poor attitudes toward government and criminal justice

What Works for Crime Victims Alline Pedra Jorge, 2021-01-26 After the Second World War the role of the victim in criminal conflict became an object of interest for academics But it was only in the 1960s that the importance of providing protection and assistance to crime victims was highlighted in particular by the victims movement which inaugurated a new era of criminal justice in systems throughout the world Moving beyond just the role of controlling crime and punishing the offender the criminal justice system also began to contribute to the victims rehabilitation and to help the victim to move on from the event psychologically and emotionally Although some criminological research was conducted on this topic the effect that the criminal justice system and victim support services have on the well being of crime victims is still uncertain The current study sought to understand the healing process of victims of crime the potential consequences of their participation on the criminal justice system and the support of victim centers Moreover it aimed to find out whether the existence of a Victim Support Act would change the treatment that the victim receives in the criminal justice system Thus this research was conducted based in two countries Switzerland and Brazil where the outcome of the victims movement on the criminal justice system was different as was the participation of the victim in the criminal justice system and the government's provision of support In order to conduct this research the qualitative method was employed which is the most efficient to gather sensitive information Interviews with crime victims were the main source of information Hearing observation and document research were used as complementary sources The results of this research show that victims who have contact with the criminal justice system and victim services are not more likely to recover than those who had no contact This is to say the support offered has no major effects the influence of the criminal justice system and the victim support services in the emotional well being of crime victims is rather neutral However considering that the sample is not representative findings are not expected to be generalized Instead findings may give insight to practitioners or to future criminal justice policy makers suggesting what may work to improve the emotional well being of crime victims as well as suggesting further studies Victims of Crime and the Victimization Process Marilyn McShane, Frank P. Williams III, 2013-12-16 Volume 6 in the 6 volume series titled Criminal Justice Contemporary Literature in Theory and Practice This compilation of articles attempts to fill gaps in existing resources with some of the best current statements on the topic Subjects include the characteristics of victims the effects of crime on victims and some contemporary theories of victimization Also included are evaluations of a variety of victim oriented policies and programs such as victim assistance peace making and victim impact statements This title will be of great utility to students scholars and others with interests in the literature of criminal justice and criminology
