

Learning Intentions and Success Criteria

When children understand what they are learning and what is expected of them, they learn best.

The terms 'Learning Intentions' and 'Success Criteria' can be intimidating and confusing but understanding them is vitally important when working in an Early Learning and Childcare setting. Learning intentions and success criteria will help your children understand both what they are learning and how to succeed.

They need both learning intentions and success criteria to draw, consolidate and achieve new knowledge. This guide will help you understand how to create learning intentions and success criteria in order to support your children and monitor best practice.

Learning Intentions

Sometimes known as learning objectives, aims, learning outcomes, goals, 'we are learning to...' statements etc.

Learning intentions should describe what you would like children to learn, not what they should be able to do.

Learning intentions help children focus on the aim of the learning experience, keep the activities relevant to the them and support their understanding. They are not about what they are doing but what they are learning.

When writing learning intentions, you should use a language that focuses on what you would like the children to know, understand or be able to do.

When writing your learning intentions, ensure that they are written in language that your child can understand.

Learning intentions are about the what,

Criteria

Success Criteria

Success criteria should be clear to the learning intention and the criteria for success. The criteria for success is learning, understanding a skill.

They are the criteria of learning the intention aims to see if their children can. They should have criteria written with the learning intention or part of writing them to show the goal of the aim.

The learning intention and success criteria should have:

to enable it to be put into practice effectively for the child. Children understand the words themselves. Learning the criteria will be the aim to see if their children can. They should have criteria written with the learning intention or part of writing them to show the goal of the aim. This will help them understand the aim of the learning intention. This is not what they should be able to do. It is what they should be able to do.

Learning Intention

- Be a learning intention
- Be clear and concise
- Able to see it and understand what it means
- Support children to learn
- Support children to learn

Success Criteria

- Able to see it and understand what it means
- Be clear and concise
- Be able to see it and understand what it means

- Use simple and clear language to describe the learning intention
- Use clear and concise language to describe the success criteria
- Use clear and concise language to describe the success criteria

Learning Intention and Success Criteria with Target Success

Both the learning intention and success criteria should be written in a way that is clear and concise.

Why do we use the word 'learning'?

It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome. It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome.

It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome. It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome.

It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome. It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome.

It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome. It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome.

It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome. It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome.

It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome. It is about the learning experience, not just the outcome.
