Surrealism in England Toni Del Renzio, Duncan Scott, Canterbury College of Arts, 1986

The Routledge Companion to Surrealism Kirsten Strom, 2022-11-08 This book provides a conceptual and global overview of the field of Surrealist studies Methodologically the companion considers Surrealism's many achievements but also its historical shortcomings to illuminate its connections to the historical and cultural moments from which it originated and to assess both the ways in which it still shapes our world in inspiring ways and the ways in which it might appear problematic as we look back at it from a twenty-first century vantage point Contributions from experienced scholars will enable professors to teach the subject more broadly by opening their eyes to aspects of the field that are on the margins of their expertise and it will enable scholars to identify new areas of study in their own work by indicating lines of research at a tangent to their own The companion will reflect the interdisciplinarity of Surrealism by incorporating discussions pertaining to the visual arts as well as literature film and political and intellectual history

The Scandalous Eye Silvano Levy, Conroy Maddox, 2003-01-01 Conroy Maddox discovered surrealism by chance in 1935 and spent the rest of his life exploring its potential through his paintings collages photographs objects and texts Inspired by artists such as Max Ernst Oscar Dominguez and Salvador Dalí he rejected academic painting in favor of techniques that expressed the surrealist spirit of rebellion Maddox went on to become a rebel in every sense the defiance that had initially turned towards aesthetics became a broader challenge against morality religion and the establishment as a whole Maddox's colorful exploits and outstanding artistic production undoubtedly made him Britain's most beguiling provocative and vigorous exponent of surrealism This book maps out his place in the history of the surrealist movement and reveals the intellectual complexity as well as the poignant charm of an oeuvre that spans eight decades

Lee Miller and Surrealism in Britain Eleanor Clayton, 2018 Lee Miller 1907-1977 moved to London in the late 1930s just as a rich strand of Surrealist practice was burgeoning in Britain Miller was central to its development and prolonged life after World War II exhibiting alongside British Surrealists such as Eileen Agar and Henry Moore in often overlooked London exhibitions This book is the first to present Lee Miller's photographs of and collaborations with key British Surrealists alongside their artworks to tell the story of this exciting cultural moment Miller's photographs of noted continental Surrealists such as Max Ernst and E. L. T. Mesens taken while they were working and exhibiting in Britain also feature alongside their works documenting their enduring friendships with Miller and her husband the artist Roland Penrose Miller's interdisciplinary photographic practice acted as a conduit for the dispersal of Surrealist images out of the realm of fine art and into the worlds of fashion commercial photography and journalism A vital study for all students and enthusiasts of Surrealism and those enthralled by the enigmatic Lee Miller this book reveals the social and cultural networks in which she was embedded offering a holistic view of her work and the life of the Surrealist movement in Britain Exhibition The Hepworth Wakefield UK 22 06 07 10 2018 Surrealism in Britain in the Thirties ,1986 Lee Miller's Surrealist Eye Lynn Hilditch,2022-11-14 American born artist Lee Miller 1907 1977 has been increasingly championed by scholars and curators for her Surrealism inspired photographs Her captivating images of Paris in the late 1920s and early 1930s her dreamlike portraits of desert landscapes and sexually suggestive architecture taken in Egypt in the mid 1930s and her witty yet often disturbing photographs of the Second World War and its aftermath have been widely discussed However while popular interest in Miller s colourful life and photographic work has been rapidly growing during the past forty years her true worth as a prominent Surrealist artist has been somewhat overlooked This new collection of essays addresses this issue revalidating Lee Miller s Surrealist position not simply as a muse friend and collaborator with the Surrealists but as one of the twentieth century s most important and influential female Surrealist artists respects these movements opposed one another As fraught as their wartime convergence might have been it fostered a rich environment for cultural production to which critics have only begun to attend By framing visual and literary works in terms of the privileged concepts in Surrealism Convulsive Beauty and the marvellous the dissertation makes a critical intervention into extant conversations about the conflation between reality and representation during wartime Chapter One examines the photography of Lee Miller a model fashion photographer and war correspondent Miller an American who studied photography with Man Ray in Paris during the late 1920s and early 1930s lived in London during the Blitz with her husband Roland Penrose a founding member of the English Surrealist Group She took photographs of the bizarre effects of air raids on buildings and objects and recorded the shocking aftermath of the war in France and Germany In Chapter Two I discuss the documentary films of Humphrey Jennings who also co founded the English Surrealist Group and helped to organise the 1936 International Surrealist Exhibition in London the pivotal event for English Surrealism The chapter speculates what relationship if any propaganda might have to Surrealism a movement predicated upon unencumbered creative and political autonomy Jennings documentaries represent complicated examples of Surrealist cinema in part because their primary objective was to serve the State by shoring up public morale Chapter Three concerns the short fiction and literary non fiction of William Sansom a writer who starred as an actor in one of Jennings films and volunteered as a member of the Auxiliary Fire Service As well as being records of his life as a firefighter during the Blitz Sansom s wartime writings document the crises of visuality and cognition that marred his effort to articulate the truth about his experiences at the epicentre of the war on the home front In Chapter Four I read Elizabeth Bowen s short story collection The Demon Lover and novel about wartime The Heat of the Day as records of a cultural denouement of Surrealism and documentary Neither a Surrealist nor a documentarian Bowen uses literary fiction to describe the psychological aftershocks of war and to critique the rhetorical conventions and clichés of the eye witness genre Her passing familiarity with and scepticism about Surrealism and documentary make her an ideal figure through which to trace the apotheosis and decline of the two movements The dissertation follows a trajectory from visual to literary texts and from non fiction to fiction Rather than suggest a movement away from visuality the primary register of Surrealism and documentary this approach accounts for the ways that representations of wartime frame the visual as a version of critique They position themselves as pieces of reality and interpretations simultaneously Miller Jennings Sansom and Bowen take seriously the divide between actuality and the make believe At the same time their works attest to the confluence of imaginative and objective reality that characterised the surreality of the world that these artists set out to record
