Territorial Justice:

Social Justice and the City David Harvey, 2010-04-15 Throughout his distinguished and influential career David Harvey has defined and redefined the relationship between politics capitalism and the social aspects of geographical theory Laying out Harvey's position that geography could not remain objective in the face of urban poverty and associated ills Social Justice and the City is perhaps the most widely cited work in the field Harvey analyzes core issues in city planning and policy employment and housing location zoning transport costs concentrations of poverty asking in each case about the relationship between social justice and space How for example do built in assumptions about planning reinforce existing distributions of income Rather than leading him to liberal technocratic solutions Harvey's line of inquiry pushes him in the direction of a revolutionary geography one that transcends the structural limitations of existing approaches to space Harvey's emphasis on rigorous thought and theoretical innovation gives the volume an enduring appeal This is a book that raises big questions and for that reason geographers and other social scientists regularly return to it Seeking Spatial Justice Edward W. Soja, 2013-11-30 In 1996 the Los Angeles Bus Riders Union a grassroots advocacy organization won a historic legal victory against the city's Metropolitan Transit Authority The resulting consent decree forced the MTA for a period of ten years to essentially reorient the mass transit system to better serve the city's poorest residents A stunning reversal of conventional governance and planning in urban America which almost always favors wealthier residents this decision is also for renowned urban theorist Edward W Soja a concrete example of spatial justice in action In Seeking Spatial Justice Soja argues that justice has a geography and that the equitable distribution of resources services and access is a basic human right Building on current concerns in critical geography and the new spatial consciousness Soja interweaves theory and practice offering new ways of understanding and changing the unjust geographies in which we live After tracing the evolution of spatial justice and the closely related notion of the right to the city in the influential work of Henri Lefebvre David Harvey and others he demonstrates how these ideas are now being applied through a series of case studies in Los Angeles the city at the forefront of this movement Soja focuses on such innovative labor community coalitions as Justice for Janitors the Los Angeles Alliance for a New Economy and the Right to the City Alliance on struggles for rent control and environmental justice and on the role that faculty and students in the UCLA Department of Urban Planning have played in both developing the theory of spatial justice and putting it into practice Effectively locating spatial justice as a theoretical concept a mode of empirical analysis and a strategy for social and political action this book makes a significant contribution to the contemporary debates about justice space and the city Transforming Spatial Data into Public Policies for Social Justice and Environmental Sustainability Alexandra Aragão, 2023-05-24 Environmental justice and social justice are well established concepts in social research This book goes beyond the established discourse to show how Geographic Information Systems can unveil higher levels of spatial unfairness when both forms of injustice coincide in the same place Territorial injustice is the result of the disproportionately higher exposure of vulnerable communities to pollution and environmental risks Overlapping layers of georeferenced environmental and social information generate maps depicting territorial injustice which can be a powerful tool to facilitate social dialogue and prompt policy change This volume brings approaches from ten Latin American countries to demonstrate how the interdisciplinarity between law and Geographic Information Systems can contribute to the development of fairer public policies and prevent and mitigate cases of extreme injustice The case studies presented are relevant to support the development of geolaw and to inspire pragmatic strategies aimed both at social justice and environmental sustainability

Long-Term Care: Matching Resources and Needs David Challis, 2018-01-18 Improving equity and efficiency in the long term care of older people is an international concern with governments attempting to ensure that policies and practice develop so that resources are used to best effect This requires good quality evidence founded on sound theory This volume honours the outstanding contribution of Bleddyn Davies to this field bringing together perspectives of scholars and practitioners from many countries including the UK Australia Hong Kong Japan Sweden and the USA Contemporary policy dilemmas are considered leavened by professional anecdote A chapter from Davies himself reflecting on the origins of the PSSRU Personal Social Services Research Unit concludes the volume that also features a full listing of his books and monographs which will prove invaluable to those seeking to engage with his contribution to the field This volume will greatly interest academics in social policy social work gerontology and social care as well as professionals in the field

Inner Peripheries in the New Conditions of Cohesion Post-SARS-CoV-2 Pawel Churski, Czesław Adamiak, Anna Dubownik, Maciej Pietrzykowski, Barbara Szyda, 2026-01-01 The book highlights the significance of a distinct category of underdeveloped areas known as the inner periphery in understanding contemporary spatial disparities in socio economic development and the challenges posed to future cohesion policy The origins conditions and evolving disparities in regional development are frequently analyzed from the perspectives of economics and economic geography where effective strategies for achieving spatial convergence in social and economic development are explored This book contributes to this ongoing dialogue by focusing on persistently marginalized areas commonly referred to as inner peripheries in relevant literature These areas are widespread across Europe regardless of a country s or region s development level The peripheral status of these areas is primarily due to their limited connectivity with surrounding environments which significantly impacts their developmental processes In recent years numerous significant developmental shocks have occurred one of which is the SARS CoV 2 pandemic These shocks have shaped the social and economic consequences that affect local development in specific areas These consequences are likely to alter the characteristics of the territorial capital of individual 4 areas the condition of public finances and the local development policies influencing them The book s objective is to present research findings on the patterns of socio economic development changes in selected inner peripheries particularly focusing on their vulnerability and resilience to the impacts of the SARSCoV 2 crisis It also aims to offer recommendations for modifying the directions and methods of implementing development policy interventions The research results from Poland the largest beneficiary of European cohesion policy serve as a foundation for proposing recommendations regarding the challenges of targeting development intervention post 2027 History, 1919 Justice of the Peace and Local Government Review, 1907 Class and Community in Frontier Colorado Richard Hogan, 1990 A significant contribution to historical sociology that shows how economic class relations within frontier communities determined the shape of the political system Scott G McNall Acts of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada Relating to Criminal Law, to Procedure in Criminal Cases and to Evidence Canada, 1891 The Justice of the Peace William Law Murfree, 1886 Administration of Justice in Egypt by H.
