Evolutionary Psychology and Terrorism Max Taylor, Ken Pease, Jason Roach, 2015-08-27 This book explores the evolutionary context of terrorism and political violence While evolutionary thinking has come to permeate both biological and social science theorising it has not yet been applied systematically to the areas of terrorism and political violence This volume seeks to do this for the first time It presents a collection of essays on evolutionary psychology and terrorism which encourage the reader to approach terrorism from a non traditional perspective by developing new approaches to understanding it and those who commit such acts of violence The book identifies evolutionary thought as heuristically important in the understanding of terrorism explores the key conceptual themes and provides an evolutionary and cross species understanding of the community wide effects of terrorist attacks The contributors bring forward innovative ideas and concepts to assist the practitioner analyst and academic to better understand and respond to the threat of terrorism In doing so this book challenges existing assumptions about terrorism and those who carry out such acts in order to move the debate into new areas characterized by an emphasis on intellectual quality and rigour an interdisciplinary approach and a drawing together of theory and practice The intention is to provide a sufficient discussion to enable the reader to both understand the relevance of evolutionary thinking to terrorism and political violence and to appreciate the practical implications of conceptualising problems in this way This book will be of much interest to students of terrorism and political violence psychology criminology and security studies

Performative Bodies, Hybrid Tongues Julian Vigo, 2010 This book reconsiders the body in literature and makes a case for visual representation as a physical and gesticulative domain for rethinking the constructions of gender nationalism and sexuality Examining literary production from the eleventh century until the present the author argues that the body in contemporary North Africa and Latin America serves as a physical and symbolic terrain upon which sexual textual national racial and linguistic identities are vectored and through which postcolonial and hegemonic antagonisms of power and identity are resolved Rather than embracing third world identity as a residual repository of western thought colonization and linguistic infusion the author suggests that the paradigm of cultural identity in the Maghreb and Latin America is best understood through an examination of the emergent corporeal articulations of subjectivity prevalent in these literatures and visual cultures The text examines the body as a critical landscape through which the various discourses of nationhood gender and sexuality converge in order to construct a reading of the social that neither amasses subjectivity as singular under the rubric of the third world nor couches the other within static notions of gendered sexual or racial identities
