Using Internet Primary Sources to Teach Critical Thinking Skills in Geography Gary S. Elbow,Martha B.

Sharma,2000-09-30 Geography teachers and school library media specialists will find this resource indispensable for providing classroom lessons and activities in critical thinking for geography students in grades 7-12. It is filled with over 75 primary source Internet sites covering such topics as Places and Regions, Physical Systems, Human Systems, Environment and Society, and the Uses of Geography and will be an invaluable tool in helping teachers and librarians meet the standards set forth in the 1994 publication Geography for Life: National Geography Standards. Each site is accompanied by a site summary that describes the site contents and usefulness to geography teachers and school library media specialists. Site subjects include Urban Landscapes, Volcanoes and Earthquakes, Weather, The U.S. Census, and the World Wildlife Fund Global Network. The questions and activities that follow are designed to develop critical thinking skills for both oral and written presentations. An appendix of additional geography resources includes Internet addresses for approximately 25 sites relating to maps, primary sources, and critical thinking. This will provide teachers and librarians with even more resources for developing lessons to help each student meet all 18 of the National Geography Standards. Using the Internet Jerry Honeycutt, 1996

Using Internet Primary Sources to Teach Critical Thinking Skills in Government, Economics, and Contemporary World Issues James M. Shiveley, Phillip J. VanFossen, 2001-09-30 Teachers of political science, social studies, and economics, as well as school library media specialists, will find this resource invaluable for incorporating the Internet into their classroom lessons. Over 150 primary source Web sites are referenced and paired with questions and activities designed to encourage critical thinking skills. Completing the activities for the lessons in this book will allow students to evaluate the source of information, the content presented, and its usefulness in the context of their assignments. Along with each Web site, a summary of the site's contents identifies important primary source documents such as constitutions, treaties, speeches, court cases, statistics, and other official documents. The questions and activities invite the students to log on to the Web site, read the information presented, interact with the data, and analyze it critically to answer such questions as: Who created this document? Is the source reliable? How is the information useful, and how does it relate to present-day circumstances? If I were in this situation, would I have responded the same way as the person in charge? Strengthening these critical thinking skills will help prepare students for both college and career in the 21st century. Using Internet Primary Sources to Teach Critical Thinking Skills in Mathematics Evan M. Glazer, 2001-08-30 Mathematics teachers and school library media specialists will find this book a valuable resource for using the Web to promote critical thinking in the high school mathematics classroom. It is filled with instructional strategies and an expansive set of activities that cover a broad array of mathematics topics, spanning from prealgebra through calculus. Teachers using the questions and activities in this book will help their students meet the standards set forth by the National Council for Teachers of Mathematics. Various types of mathematics-related sources on the Internet are outlined within this book, including data and simulations related to real-world situations such as saving funds and computing interest earned for college, purchasing a home, or decoding train and plane schedules. The author develops a framework for critical thinking in mathematics and helps teachers create a supportive classroom environment.

Each activity highlights a web source the mathematics topics involved the appropriate grade levels of study possible student investigations and related web sources for continued exploration promoting a student centered inquiry Online! Andrew Harnack, Gene Kleppinger, 1997-01-01 Need help doing research on the Internet Get Online for the latest on Success in College Using the Internet Jack Pejsa, 1998 Clearly written Success in College Using the Internet provides a wealth of sources to guide students to effectively use the Internet as a research tool Pejsa includes a tour through forty sites on the Web coverage of e mail and newsgroups and a discussion of the four major site types on the Internet FTP Telnet Gopher WAIS
