supported by numerous examples There are at least three reasons why standardizing such schemas is useful

- 1 When two groups are preparing to exchange information using XML documents a schema gives them a way to agree on what the structure of the documents is to be
- 2 Because XML schemas are machine processable and captured in a standard form tools can be built to help build XML documents automatically perhaps by extracting information from databases or to automatically generate input forms to be presented to users Similar tools can be used to automatically extract XML information into databases program APIs or spreadsheets
- 3 When documents are generated or received through a network validators can be used to check automatically that the rules have been followed

The W3C XML Schema language allows us to document the nesting structure of the elements and attributes in valid documents It also standardizes types such as integer decimal or date that apply to the content of individual attributes or elements

About the Author Mukul Gandhi has been associated with work on XML and XML Schemas since many years He was involved with the development of XML Schema 1.1 language while W3C worked on standardizing the 1.1 version of XML Schema language He has contributed to IBM's work on XML Schema 1.1 language standardization He is also the member of Apache Xerces2 XML tools project that provides among other things conformant implementations of XSD 1.0 and 1.1 processors
