Van Dusen,1997 The virtual campus is a metaphor for the electronic teaching learning and research environment created by the convergence of several relatively new technologies including but not restricted to the Internet World Wide Web computer mediated communication video conferencing multi media groupware video on demand desktop publishing intelligent tutoring systems and virtual reality The focus of this monograph is of necessity limited to changes occurring in higher education institutions that are committed to reform via technology A survey of the literature finds reform characterized by changes in teaching learning research and scholarly activity organizational culture and governance and finance Section 2 takes up teaching on the virtual campus and how institutional variables influence adoption of information technologies according to their particular missions and goals Section 3 on classroom learning contrasts traditional and virtual classrooms and describes the interface capabilities of various technologies Section 4 explores recent reconceptualizations of scholarship as well as new computer based technologies that are beginning to influence both the methods and substance of research Section 5 depicts efforts to reform both the bureaucratic and academic spheres of higher education institutions by applying principles of Total Quality Management Section 6 delineates some of the important new responsibilities of governing boards including monitoring regulatory legislation establishing a telecommunications policy and shepherding resources for technology The final section draws conclusions from the literature and makes recommendations for institutional planning and research Specifically the seven conclusions are 1 a paradigm shift can occur only in institutions
