Technological Change in a Spatial Context Enrico Ciciotti, Neil Alderman, Alfred Thwaites, 1990-09-25 This book represents a selection of contributions to the Regional Science Association European Summer Institute held at Arco Lake of Garda Italy from 17th to 23rd July 1988 on the theme of Theories and policies of technological development at the local level As such it forms a complementary volume to the collection of invited papers entitled The Spatial Context of Technological Development edited by Professors Riccardo Cappellin and Peter Nijkamp and published by Avebury Gower The Summer Institute covered a broad range of themes and contributions from over 100 researchers It has therefore not been our intention to represent or replicate these themes directly but to provide as wide an international coverage of current research in regional science in the field of technological change as possible The papers to be found in this book are drawn from the European Community Eastern Europe Scandinavia North America and elsewhere Inevitably as the book was to be published in English most of the editorial work has been undertaken at the Centre for Urban and Regional Development Studies at Newcastle University In so doing we have attempted to standardize the English as far as possible whilst trying not to lose the characteristics of the styles of the individual authors

Technological Change, Economic Development and Space Cristoforo S. Bertuglia, Manfred M. Fischer, Giorgio Preto, 2012-12-06

The pressures of global competition are affecting regions throughout the world and making it increasingly necessary to understand the complex underlying mechanisms and the potential for innovation offered by new technology Success in economic restructuring depends not only on the technology itself but the professional and entrepreneurial skills available and the support of provided by institutions and information networks The very local nature these phenomena which are critical to the innovative propensity of firms operating within the region introduces an inevitable spatial dimension The time therefore seems ripe to bring together contributions from scholars working in different but related disciplines with the aim of investigating the triangular relationship between technological change economic development and space The present volume offers a compact review of current theoretical developments and valuable insights deriving from recent empirical studies carried out both within Europe and elsewhere All those contributing to this volume are actively involved in research in the field Without their intellectual contribution and willingness to participate in this joint project the book would not have been possible We should like in addition to thank Angela Spence for her capable assistance in coordinating the various stages of preparation of the book as well as her translation work and careful linguistic editing Thanks also go to Paola Stasi for her meticulous copy editing and help in preparing the indices Their work has been invaluable in moulding together in a single volume contributions from so many different sources

Frontiers in Regional Development Y. Gradus, Harvey Lithwick, 1996 In fifteen insightful new essays noted scholars in geography economics and public policy provide a comparative examination of the problems and prospects for development in frontier areas Blending theory with case studies the essays challenge the widely held notion that peripheral areas are marginal or backward

Innovative Behaviour in Space and Time Cristoforo S. Bertuglia, Silvana Lombardo, Peter Nijkamp, 2012-12-06 In the past decade there has been growing recognition that economic development is not mainly exogenously determined but to a large extent is a transformation process induced and governed by economic actors who respond to competitive institutional and political challenge This challenge and response model is increasingly accepted as a valid analytical framework in modern growth theory and also explains the popularity of endogenous growth approaches to technological innovation issues However a major and as yet largely under researched topic is the question of the diffusion and adoption of new technological changes in the context of space time dynamics This diffusion and adoption pattern has obviously clear spatial and temporal variations connected with behavioural responses which may vary over time and different locations This means that a closer analysis of spatio temporal opportunities and impediments is necessary in order to fully map the complex interactions of technology and economy in space and time This volume sets out to bring together a collection of original contributions commissioned by the editors to highlight the spatio temporal patterns and backgrounds of the diffusion and adoption of new technologies Some are in the nature of a survey others have a modelling background and again others are case studies The contributions originate from different countries and different disciplines This book is complementary to a previously published volume on technological innovation Technological Change Economic Development and Space edited by C S Bertuglia M M Fischer and G Preto and also published by Springer Verlag 1995

S. Metcalfe,2003-01-01 This compilation by leading protagonists is a must for a greater understanding of the world we are living in and wanting to see change for the better Gerry Sweeney Prometheus Modern evolutionary economics is now nearly two decades old and in this excellent book a distinguished group of evolutionary economists identify the most important developments and discuss the direction of future research By moving away from traditional concerns with the operation of selection mechanisms towards a preoccupation with the manner in which the novelty and variety provide fuel for such mechanisms the authors identify a key development in the field Evolutionary economists have been drawn into the modern complexity science literature which attempts to provide an understanding of how and why complex adaptive systems engage in processes of self organization The goal is to provide an integrated analysis of both selection and self organization that is uniquely economic in orientation After a brief overview of the many key achievements and continuing challenges the first part of the book deals with theoretical perspectives discussing institutional change social constructions complexity selection and self selection and the usefulness of theory Part two deals with empirical perspectives and includes discussion of replicator dynamics the measurement of heterogeneity and complexity and modelling organizations as complex adaptive systems This unique book will appeal to evolutionary and industrial economists and policymakers involved with issues of innovation and management scientists

Rethinking Technology William W. Braham, Jonathan A. Hale, 2006-12-05 This essential reference for all students of architecture design and the built environment provides a convenient single source for all the key texts in the recent literature on architecture and technology The book contains over fifty carefully selected essays manifestoes reflections and theories by architects and architectural writers from 1900 to 2004 This mapping out of a century of architectural technology reveals the discipline's long and close attention to the experience and effects of new technologies and provides a broad picture of the shift from the age of tools to the age of systems Chronological arrangement and cross referencing of the articles enable both a thematic and historically contextual understanding of the topic and highlight important thematic connections across time With the ever increasing pace of technological change this Reader presents a clear understanding of the context in which it has and does affect architecture
