Michael Young, Social Science, and the British Left, 1945-1970 Lise Butler, 2020-09-02 In post war Britain left wing policy maker and sociologist Michael Young played a major role in shaping British intellectual political and cultural life using his study of the social sciences to inform his political thought In the mid twentieth century the social sciences significantly expanded and played a major role in shaping British intellectual political and cultural life Central to this intellectual shift was the left wing policy maker and sociologist Michael Young As a Labour Party policy maker in the 1940s Young was a key architect of the Party's 1945 election manifesto Let Us Face the Future He became a sociologist in the 1950s publishing a classic study of the East London working class Family and Kinship in East London with Peter Willmott in 1957 which he followed up with a dystopian satire The Rise of the Meritocracy about a future society in which social status was determined entirely by intelligence Young was also a prolific social innovator founding or inspiring dozens of organisations including the Institute of Community Studies the Consumers Association Which magazine the Social Science Research Council and the Open University Moving between politics social science and activism Young believed that disciplines like sociology psychology and anthropology could help policy makers and politicians understand human nature which in turn could help them to build better political and social institutions This book examines the relationship between social science and public policy in left wing politics between the end of the Second World War and the end of the first Wilson government through the figure of Michael Young Drawing on Young s prolific writings and his intellectual and political networks it argues that he and other social scientists and policy makers drew on contemporary ideas from the social sciences to challenge key Labour values like full employment and nationalisation and to argue that the Labour Party should put more emphasis on relationships family and community Showing that the social sciences were embedded in the project of social democratic governance in post war Britain it argues that historians and scholars should take their role in British politics and political thought seriously

Stylasteridae Hjalmar Broch,1919      The Danish Ingolf-expedition ,1914      The Eclectic Magazine of Foreign Literature, Science, and Art ,1872      The Danish Ingolf-Expedition Danish Ingolf-Expedition,1918      The Symmetrical Family Michael Young,Peter Willmott,2023-08-11 First published in 1973 The Symmetrical Family combines evidence about the family of the past with information from a sociological survey in the London region and uses both as the basis for a speculative discussion about the future The argument is that a new style of family life has emerged Its basis is not equality between husbands and wives but at least something approaching symmetry increasingly wives work outside the home and husbands inside it The new family is itself under increasing pressure Contrary to the popular view there is yet no sign of a general increase in leisure In some occupations work is dominant and becoming more so at the same time the proportions of people in such jobs though still in the minority are expanding The growing demand of wives for paid work outside the home means that in place of two jobs one for the husband and one for the wife there will often be four with both working inside as well as outside the home How long will people be able to bear the consequent strain In a final chapter the authors discuss what they think will happen unless people decide quite deliberately to reduce the pressure upon themselves and their children This book will be of interest to students of sociology health social care anthropology and public policy      The Danish Ingolf-expedition Ingolf, Ship,1914      A Treatise on Zoology Edwin Ray Lankester,1903      A Treatise on Zoology Sir Edwin Ray Lankester,1903      The Commercial Sea Fishes of Great Britain Francis Day,1884      The Fisheries Exhibition Literature ,1884      The Fisheries Exhibition Literature London.
