Via Architecture And Shadow:

Cézanne's Shadows Nancy Locke, 2025-04-22 Modernism has often been described as a rejection of the art of the past but Cézanne's Shadows makes an eloquent case for precisely the opposite artistic practice In this book Nancy Locke argues that the idea of a modernist forgetting would never have taken hold if the modernist painters themselves and Cézanne in particular had not wrestled so fiercely with the work of their predecessors Cézanne routinely interrupted his work with a model to go back to the Louvre or to consult sketches and studies he did after the old masters Exploring the importance of Cézanne's involvement with the art of the past in essays devoted to Poussin Chardin and Rubens Locke argues that Cézanne's art cannot be understood without an investigation into what he made of these earlier models and how they continued to haunt even his mature work Cézanne's Shadows offers an elegant new model for understanding the relationship between modernist painting and the creative tradition it often feigns to reject This study of artistic ambitions and an analysis of nineteenth century art writing will be especially valuable to scholars of modernism and European art history

Drawing Imagining Building Paul Emmons, 2019-04-01 Drawing Imagining Building focuses on the history of hand drawing practices to capture some of the most crucial and overlooked parts of the process Using 80 black and white images to illustrate the examples it examines architectural drawing practices to elucidate the ways drawing advances the architect's imagination Emmons considers drawing practices in the Renaissance and up to the first half of the twentieth century Combining systematic analysis across time with historical explication presents the development of hand drawing while also grounding early modern practices in their historical milieu Each of the illustrated chapters considers formative aspects of architectural drawing practice such as upright elevations flowing lines and occult lines and drawing scales to identify their roots in an embodied approach to show how hand drawing contributes to the architect's productive imagination By documenting some of the ways of thinking through practices of architectural handdrawing it describes how practices can enrich the ethical imagination of the architect This book would be beneficial for academics practitioners and students of architecture particularly those who are interested in the history and significance of hand drawing and technical drawing the early 1980s by two of the book's co-authors Tzonis and Lefaivre. This is not a style but rather an approach to architecture that asks for design to be conceived in response to the needs and opportunities of a specific region although it is not inherently opposed to global potentials. The theoretical debate is backed up by case studies of a range of projects from small scale designs using minimal technology to super sophisticated high tech solutions and from schemes that look to environmental comfort to ones concerned with issues of symbolism and memory. It is out of this multiplicity of approaches that the general global lesson of Critical Regionalism as applied to tropical architecture is to be found.
