The White Moll \(1920\) by Frank L. Packard,2017-06-27 It was very shallow scarcely three quarters of an inch in depth but it was quite long enough and quite wide enough for its purpose Inside there lay a little pile of banknotes banknotes of very large denomination the one on top was a thousand dollar bill She reached in and took out the money and then from Rhoda Gray's lips there came a little cry the flashlight dropped from her hand and smashed to the floor and she was clinging desperately to the edge of the escritoire for support The shop was flooded with light Over by the side wall one hand still on the electric light switch the other holding a leveled revolver stood a man The White Moll is Packard's only novel with a female protagonist It was adapted into a silent film in 1920

The White Moll Frank Lucius Packard,2020-12-12 It was like some shadowy pantomime The dark mouth of an alleyway thrown into murky relief by the rays of a distant street lamp the swift forward leap of a skulking figure a girl's form swaying and struggling in the man's embrace Then a pantomime no longer there came a half threatening half triumphant oath and then the girl's voice quiet strangely contained almost imperious Now give me back that purse please Instantly The man already retreating into the alleyway paused to fling back a jeering laugh Say you've got your nerve ain't you The girl turned her head so that the rays of the street lamp faint as they were fell full upon her disclosing a sweet oval face out of which the dark eyes gazed steadily at the man And suddenly the man leaned forward staring for an instant and then his hand went awkwardly to touch his cap De White Moll he mumbled deferentially He pulled the peak of his cap down over his eyes in a sort of shame faced way as though to avoid recognition and stepping nearer returned the purse Scuse me miss he said uneasily I didn't know it was you honest to Gawd I didn't Scuse me miss Good nigh
