Story Of Chinas Revolution:

China's Revolution, 1911-1912: A Historical and Political Record of the Civil War Edwin John Dingle, 2004-01-01

The story of the great Chinese Revolution of 1911 12 will probably never be told fully or accurately China is a continent in its vast area Its population is one fourth of the whole human race The country is not opened up by roads or railways and travel generally is arduous and slow exaggeration among the people as among all Orientals is second nature And so it would be at once impossible for any one man closely to follow up and widely and accurately to write of the Revolution which broke out at Wuchang last year tracing it up to the present moment and getting a clean political and international outlook whilst doing so Although I have endeavoured by careful study to get into focus with doings all over the Empire I confess that I have been unable to secure unimpeachable information on any part of China other than that in which I was living I speak of the interior of China for it was easy enough to be kept informed in the main centres and the treaty ports whilst the telegraph lines were intact Had there been roads and railways and communication of a kind to render it physically possible to move about even then this would have been impossible for soon after the Revolution broke the anti foreign spirit and the outlawry shown in many parts of the country forbade any European going far from the treaty ports and of course practically all foreigners were ordered to the coast by their consuls Had a man a workable knowledge of the Chinese language in character it would have been foolish to form one s opinions from the rumours that were printed everywhere in the Chinese Press And so it comes about that only upon those things which one saw and did is a man justified to write The reader if he knows China will need no further explanation for readily will he recognise my meaning He will understand by experience what a mass of inconsistency and incongruity China and her people are But to the Westerner who has never been into China nor rubbed shoulders closely with this peculiar people it will perhaps be necessary to add that life in China in all its forms and phases is fraught with such a truly remarkable atmosphere of the unexpected that to write on any Chinese man woman custom habit place or thing one is able only to generalise unless he goes into the tedium of particularising To get into line it is necessary so to cut down and to prune and generally to reinterpret that when one has told his story there seems to be very little at all in it But those who have lived in China know the conditions They will have absorbed this incomprehensible spirit of the country will understand what is written and what is more important still will magnetically feel what is left out which the writer on Chinese affairs would have said When in writing upon men and things Chinese you think you have pruned down all apparent misinterpretation or misrepresentation you find there is still a little pruning left to be done you prune again and in the end you find you often are to the Western mind misinterpreting and misrepresenting facts merely because you have left out that which to you with your Chinese eyes appeared untrue You see a thing in China and you think that you understand it You fix it in your mind and tell yourself that you have absorbed it whatever it may be and that you now have the final thought and word and correct meaning But after a little time you find by a peculiar process of Chinese national twisting and shifting no matter what you see hear think believe your final thought and word and correct meaning are changed completely This perhaps describes the political atmosphere during the Revolution Into everything there came an exasperating suspense a terrible tangle of all national affairs as there still must be for a very long time to come Therefore to the man who sets out to write a detailed history of China's Revolution and correctly to diagnose the effect of one event upon another in a consecutive and truthful line there at once appears a formidable task What the author has set out to do in this volume is to tell of what he saw and understood and then to put into print carefully considered opinion on the general situation and a historical survey of revolutions and main events in China that have led up to the Revolution of last October This Revolution although outbreaking prematurely was all wonderfully planned The movement began to take definite shape about fifteen or sixteen years ago says Sun Yat Sen the greatest of Chinese revolutionists though he had been interested in the movement for a longer time than that Three years ago we were ready to take over Wuchang Canton and Nanking but we were waiting to gain control of the Peking soldiers We had been working for some time through the students Following the war with Japan the Peking Government began to organise its new army sending students abroad to be trained to take charge of the army It was at once seen that if the Manchus were able to organise and control a modern army it would greatly strengthen their position and the Revolutionary party set to work to counteract their efforts They worked through the students so that when they returned to China to take positions as officers in the army they came as revolutionists The outbreak could not have been postponed for more than a few months but it did occur before it was expected We knew that we had Wuchang Nanking and Canton but there was a preliminary outbreak at Canton then another one last summer Then when the outbreak at Wuchang occurred it was no longer possible to postpone action for the Government would have begun to disarm the soldiers who sympathised with us At Canton they scattered our sympathisers over the province so that it was very difficult to concentrate them If our original plan had been carried out there would have been very little fighting Canton Nanking and Wuchang would have quietly gone over to us and then all the troops could have marched on Peking if necessary We have always had half of the Peking troops with us Thus declared Sun Yat Sen and there is little doubt he was right The hitherto irremediable suppression of the individual qualities and national aspirations of the people arrested the intellectual the moral and the material development of China The aid of revolution was invoked to extirpate the primary cause and China now proclaimed the resultant overthrow of the despotic sway wielded by the Manchu Dynasty and the establishment of a Republic The substitution of a Republic for a Monarchical form of government was not the fruit of a transient passion it was the natural outcome of a long cherished desire for broad based freedom making for permanent contentment and uninterrupted advancement It was the formal declaration of the will of the Chinese nation In a manifesto issued to all friendly nations from the Republic of China when Sun Yat Sen was appointed Provisional President it was declared that we the Chinese people are peaceful and law abiding We have waged no war except in self defence We have borne our grievances during two hundred and sixty seven years of Manchu misrule with patience and forbearance We have by peaceful means endeavoured to redress our wrongs secure our liberty and ensure our progress but we have failed Oppressed beyond human endurance we deemed it our inalienable right as well as our sacred duty to appeal to arms to deliver ourselves and our posterity from the yoke to which we have so long been subjected and for the first time in our history inglorious bondage has been transformed to an inspiring freedom splendid with a lustrous light of opportunity The policy of the Manchu Dynasty has been one of unequivocal seclusion and unyielding tyranny Beneath it we have bitterly suffered and we now submit to the free peoples of the world the reasons justifying the Revolution and the inauguration of our present government Prior to the usurpation of the Throne by the Manchus the land was open to foreign intercourse and religious tolerance existed as is evidenced by the writings of Marco Polo and the inscription on the Nestorian Tablet of Sian fu Dominated by ignorance and selfishness the Manchus closed the land to the outer world and plunged the Chinese people into a state of benighted mentality calculated to operate inversely to their natural talents and capabilities thus committing a crime against humanity and the civilised nations almost impossible of expiation The Story of China's Revolution Owen Mortimer Green,1945 The Tragedy of Liberation Frank Dikötter,2013-09-24 A groundbreaking chronicle of the violent early years of the People s Republic of China by the author of the BBC Samuel Johnson Prize winning Mao s Great Famine The Chinese Communist party refers to its victory in 1949 as a liberation In China the story of liberation and the revolution that followed is not one of peace liberty and justice It is first and foremost a story of calculated terror and systematic violence So begins Frank Dik tter s stunning and revelatory chronicle of Mao Zedong s ascension and campaign to transform the Chinese into what the party called New People Following the defeat of Chiang Kai shek in 1949 after a bloody civil war Mao hoisted the red flag over Beijing s Forbidden City and the world watched as the Communist revolution began to wash away the old order Due to the secrecy surrounding the country s records little has been known before now about the eight years that followed preceding the massive famine and Great Leap Forward Drawing on hundreds of previously classified documents secret police reports unexpurgated versions of leadership speeches eyewitness accounts of those who survived and more The Tragedy of Liberation bears witness to a shocking largely untold history Interweaving stories of ordinary citizens with tales of the brutal politics of Mao s court Frank Dik tter illuminates those who shaped the liberation and the horrific policies they implemented in the name of progress People of all walks of life were caught up in the tragedy that unfolded and whether or not they supported the revolution all of them were asked to write confessions denounce their friends and answer queries about their political reliability One victim of thought reform called it a carefully cultivated Auschwitz of the mind Told with great narrative sweep The Tragedy of Liberation is a powerful and important document giving voice at last to the millions who were lost and casting new light on the foundations of one of the most powerful regimes of the twenty first century The Inner History of the Chinese Revolution Liang-li T'ang,1930 The Tragedy of Liberation Frank Dikötter,2013-01-01 In 1949 Mao Zedong hoisted the red flag over Beijing's Forbidden City. Instead of liberating the country, the communists destroyed the old order and replaced it with a repressive system that would dominate every aspect of Chinese life. In an epic of revolution and violence which draws on newly opened party archives, interviews, and memoirs, Frank Dikter interweaves the stories of millions of ordinary people with the brutal politics of Mao's court. A gripping account of how people from all walks of life were caught up in a tragedy that sent at least five million civilians to their deaths.

Whether one views Mao Zedong as a hero or a villain, the Great Helmsman was undoubtedly a pivotal figure in the history of twentieth-century China, a man whose life and writings provide a fascinating window on the Chinese experience from the 1920s onward. Part Mao biography, part historical overview of the turbulent story of China's Communist revolutions, the introductory essay traces the history of twentieth-century China from Mao's early career up to the Chinese Communist Party's victory in 1949 through three decades of revolution to Mao's death in 1976. The second half of the volume offers a selection of Mao's writings, including such seminal pieces as On New Democracy and selections from the Little Red Book and writings about Mao and his legacy by both his contemporaries and modern scholars.
