The Lost Generation?, 2022 Twenty-five Years After Malcolm Cowley, Lost generation today, Exile's return, 1951

The Lost Generation; A Portrait of American Youth Today Maxine Davis, 2017-08-23

Modern Lives Marc Dolan, 1996 Modern Lives traces the development of the idea of the lost generation and reinterprets it in light of more recent versions of the American 1920s Employing a wide range of historical literary and cultural theory Marc Dolan focuses on American versions of the lost generation particularly as they emerged in the autobiographical writings of the generation's supposed members By examining the narrative and discursive forms that Ernest Hemingway Malcolm Cowley F Scott Fitzgerald and others imposed on the raw data of their lives Dolan draws out the subtle relationships between personal and historical narratives of the early twentieth century as well as the ways in which the mediating notion of a distinct generation allowed those authors to pass back and forth between the personal and the historical Written with the general Americanist rather than the theoretical specialist in mind Modern Lives opens out the concept of the lost generation to reveal the clashing formulations of self society nation and culture that were contained within that concept and that continue to influence personal and national self conceptions in America right down to the present day

Thomas Boyd Brian Bruce, 2006 Mentored by F Scott Fitzgerald and Sinclair Lewis and published under the renowned Scribner editor Maxwell Perkins Thomas Boyd attained only modest success as a novelist and biographer He is known most widely for his World War I novel Through the Wheat which critics praising its realistic depiction of war and battle compared to the Red Badge of Courage How does a writer like Boyd with his prominent literary friends political ideals professional aspirations complicated personal life and early death fall so easily into obscurity In this first full biography of

Thomas Boyd Brian Bruce explores the events of Boyd's life and rescues him from the realm of insignificance. The 1920s were a magical and very attractive time for critics and historians of American literature. Hollywood and the radio would soon end the careers enjoyed by many writers like Boyd and the nature of the book market would change forever in ways that mark the novel's descent from a privileged position of cultural importance or influence. Richly based on correspondence, this book not only illuminates a forgotten writer but also captures the publishing world at a mercurial peak. Generations of Lucky Devils and Unlucky Dogs Henk A. Becker, 2015-06-17. Silver grey manpower is a gold mine to society. One by one, the baby boom cohorts will reach the age of 65, starting from 2010. They are large cohorts, relatively well educated and healthy, with considerable pension and health care rights. In short, they are lucky devils. As a result of ageing cohorts that were born in 1985 onwards and that enter the labour market as from approximately 2010, will be required to pay many additional taxes during the course of their entire working life, spanning more than forty years. They are, in short, unlucky dogs. Redistribution of joys and burdens could trigger conflicts between generations. A better solution is to identify and deploy society's hidden resources. Taking this issue as a basis, the book in hand explores strategies that enable senior citizens and young people to give meaning to solidarity among generations for a start in 2012, as the European Year for Active Ageing, but also as part of Europe 2020, the European Commission's 2010-2020 strategy. With these two strategies, journalists and television producers will swing into action. In secondary and higher education, as well as in universities, more papers on life courses and patterns of generations will be written than ever before. Senior citizens' unions, but actually all social organizations, will organize lectures. Educated laymen will wish to go deeply into this issue. Henk A. Becker, 1933, is Professor Emeritus of Sociology at Utrecht University in the Netherlands. He has worked on a research project focusing on generations since 1985. American Modernism (1910-1945) Roger Lathbury, Jerry Phillips, Patricia Linehan, 2010. A guide to the modernist movement in American literature with information on American modernism, the Lost Generation, modernism in the American novel, the Harlem Renaissance, modernism in poetry and drama, and the literary culture of the Moderns. Publishing Modernist Fiction and Poetry Lise Jaillant, 2019-02-06. Publishing houses are nearly invisible in modernist studies. Looking beyond little magazines and other periodicals, this collection highlights the importance of book publishers in the diffusion of modernism. It also participates in the transnational turn in modernist studies, demonstrating that book publishers created new markets for modernist texts in the United States, Europe, and the rest of the world. A Second Flowering Malcolm Cowley, 1980. The Lost Generation Maxine Davis, 1936. After the Lost Generation John Watson Aldridge, 2019-01-13. John W. Aldridge is one of the few young critics of importance to appear on the literary scene since World War II. In AFTER THE LOST GENERATION, he discusses with acumen and discernment the most important works of the young post-war writers of the Forties: Norman Mailer, Irwin Shaw, John Horne Burns, Truman Capote, Gore Vidal, Paul Bowles, Alfred Hayes, and others. Aldridge discusses three writers of the 1920s: Ernest Hemingway, John Dos Passos, and F. Scott Fitzgerald, to introduce the writers of World War II He draws significant parallels between the work of the two generations between Hemingway and Hayes between Fitzgerald and Burns between Bowles and Hemingway and between the lost generation of the Twenties and the illusionless lads of the Forties More important than the likenesses between the two generations are the new developments Norman Mailer and Irwin Shaw wrote enormous encyclopedic war novels which covered whole armies and had settings in a dozen different lands John Horne Burns sought relief from the chaos of modernity in Italian culture and Old World tradition Truman Capote dealt essentially with abnormalities and peculiarities in human nature Anti-Semitism the Negro problem and homosexuality appear time and again in the new writing The old themes with which Hemingway and Fitzgerald shattered Victorian patterns sex drinking the brutalities of war are no longer shocking AFTER THE LOST GENERATION is a penetrating analysis of post war fiction that already has provoked wide controversy and discussion A pioneer study The first serious and challenging book about the new novelists Malcolm Cowley New York Herald Tribune

Cultural Heritage of the Great War in Britain Ross J. Wilson, 2016-04-22 As the hundredth anniversary approaches it is timely to reflect not only upon the Great War itself and on the memorials which were erected to ensure it did not slip from national consciousness but also to reflect upon its rich and substantial cultural legacy This book examines the heritage of the Great War in contemporary Britain It addresses how the war maintains a place and value within British society through the usage of phrases references metaphors and imagery within popular media heritage and political discourse Whilst the representation of the war within historiography literature art television and film has been examined by scholars seeking to understand the origins of the popular memory of the conflict these analyses have neglected how and why wider popular debate draws upon a war fought nearly a century ago to express ideas about identity place and politics By examining the history usage and meanings of references to the Great War within local and national newspapers historical societies political publications and manifestos the heritage sector popular expressions blogs and internet chat rooms an analysis of the discourses which structure the remembrance of the war can be created The book acknowledges the diversity within Britain as different regional and national identities draw upon the war as a means of expression Whilst utilising the substantial field of heritage studies this book puts forward a new methodology for assessing cultural heritage and creates an original perspective on the place of the Great War across contemporary British society The Lost Generation Voice of America (Organization), 1961

War Noir Sarah Trott, 2016-11-03 The conflation of the hard-boiled style and war experience has influenced many contemporary crime writers particularly in the traumatic aftermath of the Vietnam War Yet earlier writers in the genre such as Raymond Chandler remain overlooked when it comes to examining how their war experience affected their writing Sarah Trott corrects this oversight by examining Chandler alongside the World War I writers of the Lost Generation as well as highlighting a melding of very different styles in Chandler's work Based on Chandler's experience in combat Trott explains that the writer created detective Philip Marlowe not as the idealization of heroic individualism as is commonly perceived but instead as an authentic individual subjected to very real psychological frailties from trauma during the First World War. Inspecting Chandler's work and correspondence indicates that the characterization of the fictional Marlowe goes beyond the traditional chivalric readings and can instead be interpreted as a genuine representation of a traumatized veteran in American society. Substituting the horror of the trenches for the corruption of the city, Chandler formed a disillusioned protagonist in an uncaring America. Chandler did so with the sophistication necessary to straddle genre fiction and canonical literature. The sum of this work offers a new understanding of how Chandler uses his war trauma, how that experience established the traditional archetype of detective fiction, and how this reading of his fiction enables Chandler to transcend generic limitations and be recognized as a key twentieth-century literary figure.

Everybody Was So Young Amanda Vaill, 1998. A wonderfully bittersweet and beautifully written biography of that glittering couple whose tragic glamor inspired, amazed, and perplexed so many of the artistic giants of the Lost Generation: Deirdre Bair. There was a shine to life wherever they were, said Archibald MacLeish, describing his friends Gerald and Sara Murphy. The real-life models for Nicole and Dick Diver in F. Scott Fitzgerald's Tender Is the Night, the Murphys have appeared in virtually every book about the Lost Generation. For their apartment in Paris and their Mediterranean villa, America were the center of social and artistic life for the likes of Fitzgerald, Hemingway, Dorothy Parker, Stravinsky, John Dos Passos, Jean Cocteau, Cole Porter, and others. Gerald Murphy, the organizer of magical parties, was a brilliant painter whose work is currently undergoing a serious revival. Sara Murphy, an heiress who wore her pearls to the beach, was an enigmatic beauty whose allure enthralled Picasso; he painted her many times, as well as Fitzgerald and Hemingway. They seemed to live an enchanted life until 1929, when tragedy struck them in what Gerald called our most vulnerable spot: our children. The story of their struggle to hold their charmed circle together through the dark years of the thirties and forties is as moving as the account of their creative lives is sparkling. Everybody Was So Young is both a portrait of two extraordinary people and a biography of a glamorous era that can never be.

Writing the Lost Generation Craig Monk, 2010-11. Members of the Lost Generation, American writers and artists who lived in Paris during the 1920s, continue to occupy an important place in our literary history. Rebellious against increased commercialism and the ebb of cosmopolitan society in early twentieth-century America, they rejected the culture of what Ernest Hemingway called a place of broad lawns and narrow minds. Much of what we know about these iconic literary figures comes from their own published letters and essays, revealing how adroitly they developed their own reputations by controlling the reception of their work. Surprisingly, the literary world has paid less attention to their autobiographies. In Writing the Lost Generation, Craig Monk unlocks a series of neglected texts while reinvigorating our reading of more familiar ones. Well-known autobiographies by Malcolm Cowley, Ernest Hemingway, and Gertrude Stein are joined here by works from a variety of lesser-known but still important expatriate American writers, including Sylvia Beach, Alfred Kreymborg, Samuel Putnam, and Harold Stearns. By bringing together the self-reflective works of the Lost Generation and probing the ways the writers portrayed themselves Monk provides an exciting and comprehensive overview of modernist expatriates from the United States

A William Faulkner Encyclopedia Robert W. Hamblin, Charles Peek, 1999-11-30 Sometimes called the American Shakespeare William Faulkner is known for providing poignant and accurate renderings of the human condition creating a world of colorful characters in his fictional Yoknapatawpha County and writing in a style that is both distinct and demanding Though he is known as a Southern writer his appeal transcends regional and even national boundaries Since winning the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1950 he has been the subject of more than 5 000 scholarly books and articles Academic interest in his career has been matched by popular acclaim with some of his works adapted for the cinema This reference is an authoritative guide to Faulkner s life literature and legacy The encyclopedia includes nearly 500 alphabetically arranged entries for topics related to Faulkner and his world Included are entries for his works and major characters and themes as well as the literary and cultural contexts in which his texts were conceived written and published There are also entries for relatives friends and other persons important to Faulkner s biography historical events persons and places social and cultural developments and literary and philosophical terms and movements The entries are written by expert contributors who bring a broad range of perspectives and experience to their analysis of his work Entries typically conclude with suggestions for further reading and the volume closes with a bibliography and detailed index

The Lost Generation Abigail Crawford, 2019-04-09 This poem describes a harrowing time in our history The author was inspired by the depth of feeling and the fear of being forgotten that plagued the writers of the lost generation We can see bit of that fear in ourselves and in others of our time It is easy to feel lost in a time of social media and technology This poem is a bridge that closes the gap between the two generations The author hopes it reminds people that nothing is ever truly lost
