Teaching And Learning In The Intermediate Multiage Classroom:

Teaching and Learning in the Intermediate Multiage Classroom Alice Leeds, David Marshak, 2002-06-11 Teaching and Learning in the Intermediate Multiage Classroom describes in practical detail a creative and effective teaching practice in multiage elementary classrooms one that integrates challenging academics with personalized teaching and learning. Written by David Marshak an educator who has studied multiage classrooms for over 12 years and Alice Leeds who has taught in multiage classrooms for over a decade this book describes methods for teaching in this type of environment that provide a better form of education than the conventional age graded classroom. Leeds and Marshak examine the benefits of multiage classrooms by exploring how such classrooms function and provide a detailed description of an individual unit designed to maximize the potential of this non traditional form of intermediate education. By describing the benefits multiage classrooms provide in terms of personal social and academic achievement plus outlining a process for teachers to become successful in this environment this book is bound to interest administrators teachers and researchers in education.

A Study of Literacy Education Methods for Intermediate Multi-age Classrooms Tina Taylor, 1997 Based around the question What does it take for a new multi age teacher to implement a literacy learning program that has kids reading writing and loving it this study explores the literacy teaching methods that might best be utilized in a 4 5 multi age classroom. Research is based on interviews with multi age teachers and a reading specialist observations in two successful multi age programs and observations of students in a 4 5 classroom as a literacy teaching program is introduced. Analysis reveals that students who feel safe and experience consistent instruction and attention from the teacher are able to learn reading and writing in a variety of ways. Successful methods indicated by this research include the writing workshop including opportunities to share and to publish written work reading aloud of texts selected by the children and opportunities for self expressions through writing. Also important was student selection of activities and parent support. Student attitudes towards reading and writing in some cases prevented real learning and in others were alterable in the three month time period of this study
