The ventricular-subventricular zone: a source of oligodendrocytes in the adult brain Oscar Gonzalez-Perez, Jose Manuel Garcia-Verdugo, Adan Aguirre, 2014-09-30 Demyelinating diseases are characterized by an extensive loss of oligodendrocytes and myelin sheaths from axolemma which commonly result in disability in young adults To date there is no effective treatment against these neurological disorders In the adult brain there are neural stem cells NSCs that reside within a niche denominated ventricular subventricular zone V SVZ in the lateral wall of the cerebral ventricles NSCs give rise to neurons and oligodendrocytes that help preserve cellular homeostasis Growing evidence indicates that V SVZ progenitor cells may represent an endogenous source of oligodendrocytes that can be useful to treat demyelinating diseases This e Book The ventricular subventricular zone as a source of oligodendrocytes in the adult brain collected the most recent evidence regarding the mechanisms that modulate the proliferation migration quiescence cell fate choices and survival of oligodendrocyte precursors generated in the V SVZ Herein we compiled information about the role of Sonic hedgehog NMDA receptors ErbB proteins hemopressin erythropoietin osmolarity and microglia in the oligodendrocyte production Some chapters also describe the role of oligodendrocyte precursors in the preservation of cellular homeostasis aging and white matter repair All these information is presented as novel research findings short communications and review articles which were written by experts in the field of oligodendrocyte generation myelin production and white matter re myelination

Perceptual Modification Robert B. Welch, 2013-10-22 Perceptual Modification Adapting to Altered Sensory Environments is about the study of human perception using a particular research strategy the systematic alteration of vision or audition It is assumed that by observing how the sensory apparatus copes with this disturbance it will be possible to formulate valuable hypotheses about the structure and development of normal perception and perceptual motor coordination The specific goals of this book are first to organize the vast and confusing literature on adaptation to perceptual rearrangement and second to assess its contribution to the understanding of normal perception and perceptual learning The book begins with discussions of adaptation to small prism induced displacements of the visual field Separate chapters follow on the proposition that adaptation to prismatic displacement and other forms of rearrangement is actually a form of learning adaptation to inverted and reversed vision optical tilt illusory motions of the visual field size depth distortions and distortions of form Subsequent chapters deal with studies of auditory rearrangement examine individual and interspecies differences in adaptability and the study of adaptation to the visual distortions encountered by the underwater observer The book is written for researchers and graduate students in experimental psychology It will be of value and interest whether the reader is a specialist in the area of perceptual modification or indeed a generalist
