Practitioner's Guide to Construction Law John G. Cameron,2000 Field Guide for Construction Management Dennis H. Sanders,2011-12-19 From any perspective the ideal construction project is one in which the contractor shows up on your doorstep with the right price and all of his tools people and equipment ready to start and builds exactly what you want for the price you want and finish on schedule Everyone then goes away happy as clams This is the ideal but it never occurs The world is a competitive place to survive contractors must think competitively in order to win work They must find a way to complete a quality project for the lowest price Circumstances can easily derail even the best plans and contractors but with planning delays and cost overruns can be minimized This handbook helps guide the construction manager through the trials and tribulations of selecting expecting rejecting prompting requiring and documenting what the contractor produces on the project Contracts can be written that foresee common problems and provide the construction manager with their resolution The concepts in Field Guide for Construction Management can help you do just that Construction Manager-at-risk

Project Delivery for Highway Programs Douglas D. Gransberg,Jennifer Sue Shane,2010 TRB s National Cooperative Highway Research Program NCHRP Synthesis 402 Construction Manager at Risk Project Delivery for Highway Programs explores current methods in which state departments of transportation and other public engineering agencies are applying construction manager at risk CMR project delivery to their construction projects CMR project delivery is an integrated team approach to the planning design and construction of a highway project to help control schedule and budget and to help ensure quality for the project owner The team consists of the owner the designer who might be an in house engineer and the at risk construction manager The goal of this project delivery method is to engage at risk construction expertise early in the design process to enhance constructability manage risk and facilitate concurrent execution of design and construction without the owner relinquishing control over the details of design as it would in a design build project Liabilities and Responsibilities of the Construction Manager for Implementation and Management of the Safety Program Richard D Roth

(Jr),PENNSYLVANIA STATE UNIV UNIVERSITY PARK DEPT OF CIVIL ENGINEERING.,1987 Safety on a construction project has traditionally been the responsibility of the contractor since he was in the best position to direct and enforce the safety program The general contractor would provide the direction and coordination of the subcontractors each of which was responsible to the general contractor for their individual safety programs and efforts With the advent of construction management the owner began contracting directly with the prime contractors eliminating the need for the general contractor Most agreements between the owner and contractors continued to assign responsibility for safety to the contractors as was the case under the traditional approach to construction The first part of this report looks at the role the construction manager has assumed in the management of safety on the construction site The second part of this report examines the legal and administrative safety environment the construction manager operates in The purpose of this review is to examine the validity of the assumption that a position of minimal involvement in the project safety effort is the best shield to the incurrence of liability for safety by the construction manager Construction Manager B. Keith Davidson,2022
