Translation And Multilingualism:

Translation and Multilingualism Shantha Ramakrishna, 1997 Shantha Ramakrishna Is Professor Of French At The School Of Language Literature And Culture Studies Jawaharlal Nehru University New Delhi She Has Published In National And International Research Journals Literature in Motion Ellen Jones, 2022-01-18 Literature is often assumed to be monolingual publishing rights are sold on the basis of linguistic territories and translated books are assumed to move from one original language to another Yet a wide range of contemporary literary works mix and meld two or more languages incorporating translation into their composition How are these multilingual works translated and what are the cultural and political implications of doing so In Literature in Motion Ellen Jones offers a new framework for understanding literary multilingualism emphasizing how authors and translators can use its defamiliarizing and disruptive potential to resist conventions of form and dominant narratives about language and gender Examining the connection between translation and multilingualism in contemporary literature she considers its significance for the theory practice and publishing of literature in translation Jones argues that translation does not conflict with multilingual writing's subversive potential Instead we can understand multilingualism and translation as closely intertwined creative strategies through which other forms of textual and conceptual hybridity fluidity and disruption are explored Jones addresses both well known and understudied writers from across the American hemisphere who explore the spaces between languages as well as genders genres and textual versions reading their work alongside their translations She focuses on U S Latinx authors Susana Ch vez Silverman Junot D az and Giannina Braschi who write in different forms of Spanglish as well as the Brazilian writer Wilson Bueno who combines Portuguese and Spanish or Portunhol with the indigenous language Guarani and whose writing is rendered into Frenghlish by Canadian translator Er n Moure Exploring Translation and Multilingual Text Production Erich Steiner, Colin Yallop, 2013-02-06 The series serves to propagate investigations into language usage especially with respect to computational support This includes all forms of text handling activity not only interlingual translations but also conversions carried out in response to different communicative tasks Among the major topics are problems of text transfer and the interplay between human and machine activities Crossing Barriers and Bridging Cultures Arturo Tosi, 2003 This text presents translators from different linguistic backgrounds discussing multilingual translation in the European Union All articles stress the political dimension of multilingualism and the professional role of the translator as communicator on which much of the credibility of a union speaking with one voice in many languages will ultimately depend Negotiating Linguistic Plurality María Constanza Guzmán, Şehnaz Tahir Gürçağlar, 2022-02-15 Cultural and linguistic diversity and plurality are seen as markers of our time linked to discourses about citizenship and cosmopolitanism in the context of economic globalization in the late twentieth century It is often monolingualism however that informs understanding and policies regulating the relationship between languages nations and communities Grounded by the idea of language as lived experience Negotiating

Linguistic Plurality assumes linguistic plurality to be a continuing human condition and offers a novel transnational and comparative perspective on it. The essays featured cover concepts and praxis in which linguistic plurality surfaces in the public sphere through institutional and individual practices. The collection adopts a critical view of language policies and foregrounds distances and dissonances between policy and language practices by presenting lived experiences of multilingualism. Translation seen as constitutive to the relations inherent to linguistic plurality is at the core of the volume. Contributors explore a range of social and institutional aspects of the relationship between translation and linguistic plurality foregrounding less documented experiences and minoritized practices. Presenting knowledge that spans regions, languages and territories. Negotiating Linguistic Plurality is a thoughtful consideration of what constitutes language plurality, what its limits are, as well as its possibilities.

Multilingual Currents in Literature, Translation and Culture Rachael Gilmour, Tamar Steinitz, 2017-08-23. At a time increasingly dominated by globalization, migration and the clash between supranational and ultranational ideologies, the relationship between language and borders has become more complicated and in many ways more consequential than ever. This book shows how concepts of language and multilingualism look different when viewed from Belize, Lagos or London and asks how ideas about literature and literary form must be remade in a contemporary cultural marketplace that is both linguistically diverse and interconnected, even as it remains profoundly unequal. Bringing together scholars from the fields of literary studies, applied linguistics, publishing and translation studies, the volume investigates how multilingual realities shape not only the practice of writing but also modes of literary and cultural production. Chapters explore examples of literary multilingualism and their relationship to the institutions of publishing, translation and canon formation. They consider how literature can be read in relation to other multilingual and translational forms of contemporary cultural circulation and what new interpretative strategies such developments demand. In tracing the multilingual currents running across a globalized world, this book will appeal to the growing international readership at the intersections of comparative literature, world literature, postcolonial studies, literary theory and criticism and translation studies.

The Changing Scene in World Languages Marian B. Labrum, 1997-11-27. The 1997 ATA volume brings together articles on translation practice into the 21st century. Contributions deal with the Information Age, multilingualism in Europe, English as a Lingua Franca, Terminology standardization, translating for the media and new directions in translator training. A comprehensive bibliography of dissertations makes this a useful reference tool.

The Language of Europe Domenico Cosmai, José Manuel Durão Barroso, 2014-12-12. This book offers a clear and comprehensive introduction to the policy area of multilingualism and to translation practice within the EU institutions. This first edition in English builds on the success among academics and practitioners alike of its two preceding Italian editions published respectively in 2003 and 2007 with the title Tradurre per l'Unione europea. Milan: Hoepli, which have closely followed the EU journey through its successive enlargements and the impact of these multiple accessions on the politics and practice of institutional translation It proposes an in depth up to the minute analysis of the direct relationships between member state languages and the problems of knowledge transfer between the diverse languages and cultures that make up the patchwork which is the EU Enriched throughout with practical examples from many among the twenty four official languages of the European Union specially selected and adapted for an Anglophone readership The Language of Europe features detailed studies on the following topics the background to and arguments in favour of EU multilingualism the language features of EU documents variations in translation practice between the different EU institutions agencies and consultative bodies the day to day working practice of translators and lawyer linguists the impact of ICT on translation practice distinctive genres of EU institutional translation what the future holds for EU translation The volume incorporates a range of sample texts from a variety of EU official languages provided in the source language original and English target language translation in order to give the student and specialist an insight into and overview of the rigour and procedural expertise which are demanded and can be seen at work from initial co draft to final version in the rendering of a multilingual EU document Translating Into Success Robert C. Sprung, Simone Jaroniec, 2000-05-15 The boom in international trade has brought with it an increased demand for addressing local consumers in their native language and cultural idiom Given the complex nature and new media involved in communicating with their constituent markets companies are developing ever more complex tools and techniques for managing foreign language communication This book presents select case studies that illustrate the state of the art of language management It covers a cross section of sectors each of which has particular subtleties in language management software localization finance medical devices automotive The book also covers a cross section of topical and strategic issues time to market scheduling challenges simultaneous release in multiple languages global terminology management leveraging Internet intranet and email centralized versus decentralized management models financial and budgeting techniques human factors management issues unique to language projects technological innovation in language management terminology tools automatic translation The target audience is language professionals involved with the management aspect of language projects This includes translators and linguists managers at language service providers language managers at manufacturing service companies educators and language translation students The heart of the book is the concept of the case study particularly the Harvard Business School case study model Industry leaders and analysts provide some 15 case studies covering the spectrum of language applications Readable and nonacademic it can serve both as a text for those studying language and translation as well as those in the field who need to know the state of the art in language management

English and Translation in the European Union Alice Leal, 2021-06-20 This book explores the growing tension between multilingualism and monolingualism in the European Union in the wake of Brexit underpinned by the interplay between the rise of English as a lingua franca and the effacement of translations in EU institutions bodies and agencies English and Translation in the European Union draws on an interdisciplinary approach highlighting insights from applied linguistics and sociolinguistics translation studies philosophy of language and political theory while also looking at official documents and online resources most of which are increasingly produced in English and not translated at all and the ones which are translated into other languages are not labelled as translations In analysing this data Alice Leal explores issues around language hierarchy and the growing difficulty in reconciling the EU's approach to promoting multilingualism while fostering monolingualism in practice through the diffusion of English as a lingua franca as well as questions around authenticity in the translation process and the boundaries between source and target texts The volume also looks ahead to the implications of Brexit for this tension while proposing potential ways forward encapsulated in the language turn the translation turn and the transcultural turn for the EU Offering unique insights into contemporary debates in the humanities this book will be of interest to scholars in translation studies applied linguistics and sociolinguistics philosophy and political theory

A Multilingual Nation Rita Kothari

(Ed),2025-06-30 How does India live through the oddity of being both a nation and multilingual Is multilingualism in India to be understood as a neatly laid set of discrete languages or a criss crossing of languages that runs through every source language and text The questions take us to reviewing what is meant by language multilingualism and translation Challenging these institutions A Multilingual Nation illustrates how the received notions of translation discipline do not apply to India It provocatively argues that translation is not a solution to the allegedly chaotic situation of many languages rather it is its inherent and inalienable part An unusual and unorthodox collection of essays by leading thinkers and writers new and young researchers it establishes the all pervasive nature of translation in every sphere in India and reverses the assumptions of the steady nature of language its definition and the peculiar fragility that is revealed in the process of translation
