Arenas of Language Use Herbert H. Clark,1992 When we think of the ways we use language we think of face to face conversations telephone conversations reading and writing and even talking to oneself These are arenas of language use theaters of action in which people do things with language But what exactly are they doing with language What are their goals and intentions By what processes do they achieve these goals In these twelve essays Herbert H Clark and his colleagues discuss the collective nature of language the ways in which people coordinate with each other to determine the meaning of what they say According to Clark in order for one person to understand another there must be a common ground of knowledge between them He shows how people infer this common ground from their past conversations their immediate surroundings and their shared cultural background Clark also discusses the means by which speakers design their utterances for particular audiences and coordinate their use of language with other participants in a language arena He argues that language use in conversation is a collaborative process where speaker and listener work together to establish that the listener understands the speaker s meaning Since people often use words to mean something quite different from the dictionary definitions of those words Clark offers a realistic perspective on how speakers and listeners coordinate on the meanings of words This collection presents outstanding examples of Clark s pioneering work on the pragmatics of language use and it will interest psychologists linguists computer scientists and philosophers
