American Scenic Design and Freelance Professionalism David Bisaha, 2022-11-29 An inclusive history of the professionalization of American scenic design The figure of the American theatrical scenic designer first emerged in the early twentieth century As productions moved away from standardized painted scenery and toward individualized scenic design the demand for talented new designers grew Within decades scenic designers reinvented themselves as professional artists They ran their own studios proudly displayed their names on Broadway playbills and even appeared in magazine and television profiles American Scenic Design and

Freelance Professionalism tells the history of the field through the figures institutions and movements that helped create and shape the profession Taking a unique sociological approach theatre scholar David Bisaha examines the work that designers performed outside of theatrical productions He shows how figures such as Lee Simonson Norman Bel Geddes Jo Mielziner and Donald Oenslager constructed a freelance professional identity for scenic designers by working within their labor union United Scenic Artists Local 829 generating self promotional press building university curricula and volunteering in wartime service However while new institutions provided autonomy and intellectual property rights for many women queer and Black designers were not always welcome to join the organizations that protected freelance designers interests Among others Aline Bernstein Emeline Roche Perry Watkins Peggy Clark and James Reynolds were excluded from professional groups because of their identities They nonetheless established themselves among the most successful designers of their time Their stories expand the history of American scenic design by showing how professionalism won designers substantial benefits yet also created legacies of exclusion with which American theatre is still reckoning

Developing the Modern Scene Design Process: Cognition and the New Stagecraft David Bisaha,2015 This dissertation examines the working processes and professional activities of American scenic designers between 1910 and 1950 Beginning with the assertion that a common idea of design process has persisted among American professionals for much of the century my case studies probe the history of the process Previous historians have noted that the modern scene design process was heavily informed by the New Stagecraft movement and promulgated its aesthetic values simplicity unification collaboration Inspired by European modernist production especially the work of Edward Gordon Craig Adolph Appia and Max Reinhardt New Stagecraft artists produced simplified or abstract settings unified design concepts and introduced a more collaborative production model This dissertation argues that the New Stagecraft revolution was not only an aesthetic shift but also the beginning of theatrical design as a profession I do so by analyzing ways in which New Stagecraft designers defined and defended their professional status They developed new tools for script analysis and documenting their work published books and articles demonstrating the value of good design and strategically allied themselves with organized labor and major universities They also institutionalized their practices in labor regulations entrance exams and educational curricula The perceived stasis of the design process can be attributed to the preservation of specific design behaviors in these institutions Methodologically I draw on studies of designing based in the cognitive and design sciences Archived remnants of past designers are analyzed through principles of situated and extended cognition such as offloading affordances and artifact use I then develop my conclusions through concepts of professional expertise including reflective practice and practicum education and finally link individual practices to social change by applying the history of professionalization as it has been developed by sociologists In total this dissertation charts a method for applying cognitive studies research to theatrical design history and a way of linking private creative practices to larger changes in theatrical production methods By studying the behavior of influential scenic designers both in the studio and in their professional networks I show how strategically placed individuals processes came to define the field
