Travel narratives were the principal source of knowledge about the lands of the Near East and the Indian Ocean Basin in 17th century France. Claiming the authority of first hand observation they paradoxically rely for their legitimization on the tropes of an established literary tradition. The status of these texts remained ambiguous not least because of their anecdotal depictions of great riches, brutality or sexual promise. Drawing on the insights of post colonial scholarship this study tackles a question given scant attention in previous work and suggests that beyond the hazy representation of the Orient an opposition emerges between the threatening Near East and the indolent East Indies. Distinguishing recognizable representations from those generated by new encounters this book questions the feasibility of cultural representation through travel exploring a large corpus of original sources written by French ecclesiastics, gentlemen, travellers, ambassadors and adventurers. Linguistic, religious, cultural or geographical barriers meant most travellers remained distanced from the peoples about whom they would simultaneously become authoritative. The encounter was further transformed in narratives that were intended to entertain and to satisfy the criterion of curiosity. The Oriental that emerges is a supremely variable entity, alternately naked or veiled, barbaric or civilized, menacing or attractive. A Voyage Round the World William Samuel Waithman Ruschenberger, 1838      Sojourners in a Strange Land Florence C. Hsia, 2011-04-15

Though Jesuits assumed a variety of roles as missionaries in late imperial China their most memorable guise was that of scientific expert whose maps, clocks, astrolabes and armillaries reportedly astonished the Chinese. But the icon of the missionary scientist is itself a complex myth. Masterfully correcting the standard story of China Jesuits as simple conduits for Western science Florence C. Hsia shows how these missionary scientists remade themselves as they negotiated the place of the profane sciences in a religious enterprise. Sojourners in a Strange Land develops a genealogy of Jesuit conceptions of scientific life within the Chinese mission field from the sixteenth through eighteenth centuries. Analyzing the printed record of their endeavors in natural philosophy and mathematics Hsia identifies three models of the missionary man of science by their genres of writing mission history travelogue and academic collection Drawing on the history of early modern Europe's scientific religious and print culture she uses the elaboration and reception of these scientific personae to construct the first collective biography of the Jesuit missionary scientist's many incarnations in late imperial China Catalogue of the Library of the India Office: [pt. 1] Classed catalogue. 1888 Great Britain.
