Science, Technology, and New Challenges to Ocean Law Harry N. Scheiber,James Kraska,Moon-Sang Kwon,2015-08-25 Science Technology and New Challenges to Ocean Law offers fresh perspectives on a set of vital issues in the field of ocean law and policy Since the early period of the industrial revolution successive waves of revolutionary scientific discoveries and technological innovations have intensified the global population s exploitation of ocean and coastal resources In this volume several leading authorities in the field address major dimensions of the interface of science technology and ocean law both historically and in current day perspective and emergent challenges in legal ordering of ocean uses for sustainability and equitability Among the topics that are analysed in these readable accessible papers are ecosystem approaches to resource management the historic interplay of science and military concerns the place of science in dispute settlement processes the varied human uses of the seabed the roles in ocean governance of indigenous peoples legal issues in fisheries management and conservation and special regional problems of the Arctic the Bering Strait the South China Sea and the eastern Mediterranean The urgent importance of the subjects addressed here together with the variety of disciplinary approaches deployed by the authors enhance the value of this book s unique contribution to the literature of ocean studies Target: Earth Allan O. Marine Ecosystem Assessment for the Southern Ocean: Meeting the Challenge for Conserving Earth Ecosystems in the Long Term Monica M. C. Muelbert, 2024-12-24 National and international agencies need assessments of change in ecosystems and their drivers in order to sustain natural systems to maintain the delivery of services and to meet the challenge for conserving Earth ecosystems in the long term In marine systems change may arise directly from human activities e.g. fisheries indirectly from local or global activities cascading effects through food webs from fisheries or changing environments from climate change and or ocean acidification or from naturally varying processes A particular challenge for managers is to identify how dangerous future climate change will be for ecosystems and their services and whether mitigation or adaptation may be needed in advance in order to achieve the conservation requirements For regions of international attention particularly those that have the attention of many management or policy oriented bodies a standardized process is needed to harmonize the scientific information on the status and trends in ecosystems used by the different bodies That process also needs to ensure the information is available in a timely manner For example assessments of change in habitats species and or food webs in the Southern Ocean are currently compiled separately for at least ten different international organizations or processes A Marine Ecosystem Assessment for the Southern Ocean MEASO aims to harmonize that information for policy makers This assessment began with an international conference in April 2018 <http://www.measo2018.aq> where it was agreed to undertake the first MEASO over 2018-2019 with the view to provide the outcomes to relevant bodies such as the Scientific Committee for the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources soon after
