The Volunteer Subject Robert Rosenthal, Ralph L. Rosnow, 1975 A Wiley Interscience publication Artifacts in Behavioral Research Robert Rosenthal, Ralph L. Rosnow, 2009-08-03 This new combination volume of three books in one dealing with the topic of artifacts in behavioral research was designed as both introduction and reminder It was designed as an introduction to the topic for graduate students advanced undergraduates and younger researchers It was designed as a reminder to more experienced researchers in and out of academia that the problems of artifacts in behavioral research that they may have learned about as beginning researchers have not gone away For example problems of experimenter effects have not been solved Experimenters still differ in the ways in which they see interpret and manipulate their data Experimenters still obtain different responses from research participants human or infrahuman as a function of experimenters states and traits of biosocial psychosocial and situational origins Experimenters expectations still serve too often as self fulfilling prophecies a problem that biomedical researchers have acknowledged and guarded against better than have behavioral researchers e g many biomedical studies would be considered of unpublishable quality had their experimenters not been blind to experimental condition Problems of participant or subject effects have also not been solved We usually still draw our research samples from a population of volunteers that differ along many dimensions from those not finding their way into our research Research participants are still often suspicious of experimenters intent try to figure out what experimenters are after and are concerned about what the experimenter thinks of them Hearings on Military Posture and H.R. 10929 United States. Congress. House. Committee on Armed Services, 1978 The Student Volunteer, 1893 Medical Outcasts Roxane Richter, 2015-12-24 As witnessed through the firsthand experiences of a frontline activist and international medical aid practitioner this biosocial political study gives voice to the inequities in undocumented Mexican and Zimbabwean women s emergency healthcare access and treatment in Houston United States of America and Johannesburg South Africa As a construct of feminist transdisciplinary fieldwork this research utilizes methodological pluralism and biosocial disparities to examine constructs of social determinants or social origins of women s suffering disease and healthcare access These variables include gender inequity xenophobia structural violence political economy subjugation healthcare access and delivery disparities and human rights violations Illustrated through 24 purposive interviews this seven year study shows Zimbabwean women sought out emergency care at a rate 16 times higher than their Mexican counterparts but reported lower instances of domestic violence and depression Most notably the Zimbabwean women reported communicable diseases at double the rate of the interviewed Latinas However the most surprising finding of the study was the high number of Mexican women some 60% who cited depression as one of their indications for seeking emergency healthcare The study indicated that the reality of many forced migrants experiences in claiming their accorded healthcare rights was more theoretical than practical in its distribution and disposition Particularly sovereign freedom and civil justice

were not being conferred to these women according to the two host country s mandated Constitutional precepts and or emergency medical aid mandates and social gender aid and human rights justice directives Thus the role of government in shaping these systemic and institutionalized ideologies will be examined as well as paradigms that effect national healthcare expenditures subsidies and public health risks The intention of this study is not to provide definitive recommendations of specific forced migration policies that have a civic and or partisan duty to be executed but rather to serve as an illustration of how these social tenets inequitable power relations and political economy subjugation directly impact socioeconomically disadvantaged women s health livelihood and human rights
